DENTISTS OF STATE GATHER IN CONVENTION

Study and Work Chief Features of Three Day Convention Opening Here

CLINICS ARE HELD

Golf Tournament, Banquet and Theater to Provide Convention Diversions

Dentists from all parts of North Dakota gathered in Bismarck today for the eighteenth annual convention of the North Dakota State Dental Association. Dentists continued to arrive on trains coming in after the opening of the convention in the Masonic temple this morning, and it is expected that the attendance may reach 150 before night.

The dentists, unlike some other attending conventions, come chiefly for business and work. The program is filled with clinics and technical papers. Numerous persons will receive free dental treatment in the clinics while clinicians will do the work under the close scrutiny of the dentists at the convention.

The dentists will find time for play but after "office hours." A golf tournament in charge of W. J. Hewitt, general chairman, and H. W. Rawlings, local chairman, is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock. The annual banquet will be held tomorrow evening at the McKenna hotel, with Governor Nestos and state superintendent of education, Mr. J. H. Nelson, giving addresses. The dentists have reserved a block of seats for Walker Whitehead's performance in "The Hindu" at the Auditorium the same evening.

Held in Temple

The Masonic temple was made available for the dentists using the lodge room for general meetings, other rooms for clinics and exhibits. Among those from out of the state present are F. A. Bricker of Rochester, Minn.; Louis L. Eckman of St. Paul; and Arthur Paul Little, St. Paul.

Mayor Lenhart gave the dentists a hearty welcome when they assembled this morning, telling them they are free to avail themselves of any facilities for their comfort or enjoyment while in the city. Dr. Ira H. Wells of Harvey, acting president of the association, responded to the address of welcome. He briefly alluded to the work of the association, stating that progress was made through the close study in the clinics held in the meetings.

Delegates chosen out of delegates to the national convention, Dr. R. S. Towne of Bismarck and Dr. C. F. Smith of Minot being named, with Dr. A. Hallenbeck of Fargo and Dr. Thomas Smith of Langdon as alternates. With committees on memorials named, the meeting was turned over to Dr. L. B. McLean of Jamestown, chairman of the program committee.

The first speaker in the convention was Dr. F. A. Bricker, of Rochester, a native North Dakotan, who gave a clinical lecture on preventive dentistry.

INDOMITABLE EGO MAKES FIGHTING TIGER WOMAN OF CLARA PHILLIPS

By Jack Jungmeyer
NEA Service Writer
Los Angeles, June 5.—Clara Phillips could not conceal the character stripes which dubbed her "tiger woman" for the ferocious hammer murder of Alberto Meadows.

That is why, recently recaptured after jail break and flight to Central America, she now is lodged in San Quentin penitentiary under a 10-year life sentence for slaying the young widow she suspected of intimacy with her husband, Armour Phillips, oil salesman.

The "tiger" could not sheathe her claws even in flight. Could not control that dominant, combative trait which runs revealingly through her stage and domestic life and which erupted in the grisly act on a lonely hilltop to which she had lured her victim last July.

Ego Causes Downfall
It was this penchant for fighting, this exaggerated self-assertiveness, upon which the authorities relied for her eventual apprehension.

Sheriff William Traeger had insisted that she could not hide her nature; that something would provoke her and provide a clue.

Jesse Carson, ex-convict and, by her statement, the man who saved her from Los Angeles bars, did not provoke Carson was Mrs. Phillips' traveling companion. On the journey through Mexico into Honduras where the arrest was made, Clara posed as Carson's wife.

They had been joined by Mrs. Phillips' younger sister, Etta Mae Jackson. But when her liberator dropped his pose of chivalry and took advantage of the situation, Clara says, public sentiment arose.

The behavior of the trip, for which each blamed the other, blazed the trail for pursuit, providing the trace confidently awaited by Sheriff Traeger.

In the Honduran jail Clara bravely flared away. She slapped a guard. She buffeted newspapermen and smashed cameras. Wearing a chip on her shoulder, she slipped of tongue and fist, as she is reported to have been at home and in the stage chous she once dominated.

Maintained Her Innocence
Returned to Los Angeles, the mercurial Clara proposed to reclaim the right to disprove guilt for the murder she has disclaimed since her husband told officers of her confession and instigated her arrest. Her effort to secure retrial was based on a certificate of probable cause, a technical barrier to her immediate removal to San Quentin.

Clara Phillips was convicted largely on the testimony of Mrs. Peggy Caffee, former chorus girl, whom she asserted owed her the Meadows girl's death under the flailing hammer.

Leaving her victim horribly mutilated, Mrs. Phillips, 26 years old, compelled Mrs. Caffee to drive away with her in the auto by which Alberto had gone to her doom.

Then, as the convicting jury heard the gruesome tale, Mrs. Phillips threatened to kill her companion if she told, confessed the crime to Phillips, was by him put aboard a train and next day arrested in Arizona. She was convicted on a compromise verdict and sentenced under the California indeterminate law.

A Born Fighter
It was while in the Los Angeles county jail awaiting decision on appeal that Clara escaped in December through sawed cell bars from solitary confinement, scaled the roof, gained the street and was whisked away by confederates, remaining hidden in the city for several weeks, reached New Orleans in disguise and with Carson and her sister sought refuge in Central America.

The nature of the crime, her escape, the drama of a 10,000-mile chase, the election of her younger sister to share Clara's flight and fate, her reported near success in slipping her way to release in Tegucigalpa, the suspense inherent in extradition proceedings—all these give the case all the elements of a criminal classic.

OPEN ATTACK ON M'KENNA'S BANK RULINGS

Attorneys For State Seek To Have Supreme Court Review Action of District Judge

DEFENSE IS RESISTING

Hold Supreme Court Is Without Jurisdiction in the Cases at Bar

Objections to the jurisdiction of the supreme court were filed with the court today by attorneys in behalf of District Judge George M. McKenna when the court sat to hear the petition of Attorney-General George F. Shafer that the court exercise its supervisory powers over lower courts and review and reverse the action of Judge McKenna in setting aside 36 indictments of the Cass county grand jury in the Scandinavian-American bank "wrecking" cases.

W. S. Lauder and Chas. E. Wolfe of Wahpeton and John Burke of Fargo, attorneys for the defendants in the bank cases, appeared in court to resist the petition of the Attorney-General, and in formal objections filed held that such matters as those involved in the McKenna decision did not come within the scope of the supervisory powers of the supreme court over the lower courts of the state.

George A. Bangs of Grand Forks, special assistant attorney-general in the case, opened the arguments of the state in behalf of its petition, and reviewed at length the actions before the Cass county grand jury which resulted in the indictment of A. C. Townley, H. J. Hagen, O. F. Loftus and many others.

Arguments were expected to consume the entire day, the attorneys not being limited in time. Mr. Bangs spoke during the entire morning session of the court and was to resume this afternoon.

KEEPS CASE FROM BOARD

Tommy McCall, Minot youth serving life sentence in prison here for murder and for whom a special act of the legislature was passed making him eligible to pardon at any time, did not take his case before the board of pardons, which ended a three-day session last night, it was said today. Under present laws a murderer cannot be pardoned until he has served half his life expectancy. Some of McCall's friends indicate he may not bring his case before the board for several months.

PETITIONS ON BANK LAW O. K.

Certificate Issued Stating It Goes Before Voters

Petitions filed by F. O. Hollstrom of Bismarck and others asking that section 2 of senate bill No. 376, the bank stock law validating act, be submitted to vote of the people have been accepted by the secretary of state and petitioners informed by Secretary of State Hall that the measure will be submitted at the election designated in the petition for a special election called by the Governor.

The number of signers was found in excess of 7,000 and an opinion was received from the attorney-general stating that the fact that some petitioners contained a committee of petitioners different from that named in other petitions was immaterial, the Secretary of State said.

GEN. DUNCAN LEAVES CITY

Major-General George Duncan left Bismarck last night with his aide, Col. Heaton, after they had called upon Governor Nestos, visited Fort Lincoln and met officers of the National Guard and U. S. In the evening they were entertained by a group of citizens at the Country Club at dinner.

GOPHER HIGH COURT TAKES ELECTION CASE

Issues Writ of Prohibition Against Ramsey County Judges

TO DECIDE SOON

Hearing Set For Today and Decision May Follow Soon After

St. Paul, June 6.—The state supreme court is expected to rule on the question of the jurisdiction of the Ramsey county (St. Paul) district court in injunction proceedings to halt the election in Minnesota to choose a successor to the late United States Senator Knute Nelson.

The supreme court late yesterday issued a writ of prohibition against all the judges of the Ramsey county district bench restraining them from proceeding further in the matter until the jurisdiction matter has been decided.

The prohibition writ was issued at the request of the Attorney General's office which contended that the district court writ sought by Attorney Frank McAllister of St. Paul raised the question of a conflict between the executive and legislative departments of the government and the judicial department.

McAllister is seeking to have the June 18 primary and the July 16 election called by Governor Preus declared illegal on the ground that the Governor had no authority to take such action which would involve an expense of $500,000.

Arguments on the writ of prohibition will not be undertaken before noon. Justice Alvin Brown said although the writ was made returnable for 10 o'clock a. m. The other cases are expected to occupy the forenoon session of the court. The chief justice declared that a decision probably would be handed down this afternoon.

DEFENSE TRIES FOR DELAY IN MURDER TRIAL

State Opposes Move to Put Higginbotham Case Over For Weeks

Lake City, Fla., June 6.—Defense counsel in the case of the state of Florida against Walter Higginbotham today was the center of interest in a delay of 60 to 90 days which was being sought on motion that several important defense witnesses could not be had at the trial on such short notice.

The trial, which started yesterday, is the outcome of a grand jury investigation coupled with a legislative inquiry which resulted in an indictment against Higginbotham in connection with the death of Martin Tabert of North Dakota in a private convict camp.

Little progress was made yesterday. Considerable time was consumed during a hearing on the motion. The defense contended that the court was without jurisdiction. The motion was overruled. Judge M. A. McMullan, sitting in the case, then recessed until today to allow the defense to present a motion for continuance.

The defense is seeking a continuance from 60 to 90 days on the ground that it has not been able to obtain witnesses in the state of Florida, Georgia, and as far north as North Carolina, which had been combed for them without success. Affidavits accompanying the motion are signed by E. G. Priest, a civil engineer employed by the Putnam Lumber Co. His affidavit is supported by the Sheriff of Dixie, Taylor, and Columbia counties, alleging that diligent searches had been made.

Many of the witnesses for the defense are the witnesses for the defense. Among these were Dr. E. Jones, Lumberton camp physician who is looked upon by both sides as the most important in the case.

A list of 47 witnesses has been submitted. The state has declared itself ready for trial and has approximately 50 witnesses.

Higginbotham is represented by six lawyers with Leonidas Wade of Clay county as leading counsel.

ASK BOARD TO EMPLOY AGENT FOR COUNTY

Delegation Appears Before County Commissioners to Make Request

ASK BIDS ON BONDS

Commissioners Probably to Sell Bonds at First Meeting in July

Request for the employment of a county agent in Burleigh county was made before the board of county commissioners, this afternoon by several speakers.

J. W. Haw, county agent leader of the state, was here to lay the matter before the board. He said that he had been informed that there was belief on the part of some people that the city of Bismarck vote had resulted in the majority for a county agent in the election last fall, but that an examination of the vote showed that this was not so. The county, outside of Bismarck, voted for the agent by a big majority.

He said he understood that no funds had been available for employing an agent the last spring, because no levy had been made, but that the commissioners would be in July, and he asked that a levy be made for a county agent. The cost, he said, amounted to about 17 cents a quarter section of land.

He said the extension department at the Agricultural College was not trying to thrust an agent on the county, but that they felt it was their duty under the law to come before the board and ask that the law be complied with. The extension department, he said, offered the county $1,200 cash a year to apply on the agent's salary.

He asked permission to try to work out a satisfactory arrangement with the board to employ an agent. J. M. Thompson of Still, president of the Farm Bureau, spoke in favor of an agent. He said that there was no question but that if a good agent was obtained, the county would save money. He said that farmers attending one of the poultry culling demonstrations could save enough money to pay the cost of a county agent for many years, and that he himself had saved money by getting rid of poor producing poultry.

He also said that a former county agent held a livestock judging contest in one section of the county, and that as a result of this several young men went into raising good stock, and had made money doing it.

Take up Bond Matter
The county commissioners, at their meeting today, decided that if any bonds are issued by the county, they will be issued after bids are accepted at the July meeting. At that time the issues, if any, will be under the law of the legislature of 1923, requiring counties to go on a cash basis. The resolution referred to the decision of the district holding that no valid contract had been entered into by the commissioners for the sale of bonds and the fact that a better offer had been made since to the board. The previous proposed sale was $50,000 to $100,000 bonds at 5 1/2 percent, par value.

NEW PAVILION WILL BE BUILT AT TOURIST CAMP EAST OF CITY

The Bismarck tourist camp will be modernized immediately. S. W. Corwin, chairman of the A. C. committee of the tourist camp, said today that a new pavilion will be built at the camp as quickly as possible. It will be 40 feet long, closed on three sides, with picnic tables, electric hot plates and running water. It will offer modern camp facilities for tourists preparing their meals.

Arrangements also have been completed for more extensive lighting, the electricity to be furnished from the pentastatic light plant.

After considering the cost of locating a camp within the city limits, the A. C. committee found that it was excessive. The present camp is a desirable one for tourists, they found upon inquiry among them, and while it would be most desirable from the standpoint of local people to have the camp in town or closer, it was decided to improve the present camp.

With the addition to the present facilities of the camp, it is believed Bismarck will offer as attractive a tourist camp as is to be found on the Red Trail.

The committee urges local citizens generally to follow the lead established by many in visiting the camp frequently of evenings, to meet and welcome the tourists who are camping there.

CITY BODY TO MAKE OFFER TO BUY PROPERTY

Negotiations For Purchase of Old Plant Must Be Complete by June 11

WORTH IS DISCUSSED

Offer Is Based Upon Cost of Building the Plant New At This Time

The city commission of Bismarck will offer the Bismarck Water Supply company $250,000 for its plant. The offer, decided upon last night in a lengthy meeting in which the citizens committee deliberated with the city commissioners, is regarded as the final offer of the city. Negotiations for purchase of the water company must close by the night of June 11.

The city commission arrived at the figure by taking the estimate of the city engineer of the value of the present plant based upon prices contained in bids submitted for the construction of a new plant and adding a sum because the company is a going concern.

City Engineer Atkinson, after applying the prices in bids on the building of a new plant to the property in the old plant, estimated the reproduction cost of the present plant at about $340,000, and the depreciated value at about $240,000. The figure of $240,000 was $15,000 higher than his estimate to the railroad commission three years ago. This difference was due to the increase in the price of cast iron pipe used in the building of the plant, and the valuation method being used at that time being to take the median of prices for a period of several years.

In presenting the estimate, the city engineer disregarded all previous estimates and methods, the instructions being to apply the prices given by bidders who offered to build a new plant, and apply depreciation.

The city some months ago made the company an offer of $205,000 for the plant, that being an arbitrary figure. The present figure, the commissioner believe, is the fair value in the light of what it costs to build a plant at this time.

In the informal discussion the cost of taking up paving to build a new plant was considered. This was estimated at $37,000. If the present plant were bought and additions proposed by the city made the cost of tearing up paving would be $13,000. If the city took over the present plant, according to "come it would immediately have to spend several thousand dollars in repairs.

City Engineer Atkinson said that he had always been in favor of taking over the present plant of the company and putting on necessary repairs and additions, if it could be bought at a reasonable price, and that in figuring the price the commission ought to allow something for the fact that the company is a going institution. There could be some saving, he said, by the city immediately operating the present plant without profit while additions were being put on.

The city commission and citizens committee was unanimous in their opinion that $250,000 was a fair figure.

Commissioner Hensler introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

"The report of the City Engineer as to the value of the property of the Bismarck Water Supply Company having been received, and the condition of such property having been considered by the Board of City Commissioners, and the value of the said property having been considered in the light of bids received for the construction of a new water works system, and the Board of City Commissioners being satisfied that $250,000 is the reasonable present value of the property of such Bismarck Water Supply Company.

"NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED That the City of Bismarck hereby offers to the Bismarck Water Supply Company the sum of $250,000 as the purchase price of its said property, and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED That negotiations for the purchase of such property shall close finally on the 11th day of June, 1923, at eight o'clock, P. M., and that the answer of such company to the offer here made be required on or prior to such date.

Provided, that if such offer be accepted the purchase price shall be paid within ninety (90) days from the date of acceptance.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED That the City Auditor be and is hereby instructed to send a certified copy of this resolution to the Bismarck Water Supply Company at its Bismarck office by registered mail."

Commissioner Larson seconded the motion moving the adoption of the resolution. On roll-call the commissioners voted as follows: Ayes, Commissioners French, Hensler, Larson, Thompson and Atkinson. Nays, none. The motion carried and (Continued on Page 2)

BUSINESS CHAOS IN EDISON-FORD MONEY SCHEME

Expert Shows How Commodity Money Would Make Worse the Evils It Aims to Correct.

MEANS SPECIAL FAVORS AND ADDITIONAL TAXES

Would Open Way for Political Meddling With Business and Complicate the Conduct of Trade and Finance.

The weaknesses of the Edison-Ford commodity money scheme to abolish the gold standard and do away with monetary instability, interest charges and speculation in farm products are exposed by William T. Foster, Director of the Pollack Foundation for Economic Research, in an article in the Proceedings of the Academy of Political Science. He shows that the only result of the plan would be to aggravate the evils it aims to cure. There is presented herewith the first of a series of articles, prepared by the American Bankers Association, reviewing Mr. Foster's argument.

The plan provides, Mr. Foster explains, for government built owned and controlled warehouses, to which producers might bring basic commodities raised on American soil, on which they wish to borrow money. A government agent would grade the producer's goods and hand him two pieces of paper—a mortgage certificate and an equity certificate.

The Edison-Ford Plan. The mortgage certificate could be exchanged at any national bank for Federal Reserve notes up to 50 percent of the average value of the goods for the previous twenty-five years. In this way the producer would obtain a loan of money without incurring any expenses for the use of the money and he would still own the goods.

"His equity certificate is his evidence of ownership," Mr. Foster says. "He may keep it, sell it or present it at a bank as security for a loan. He or anyone to whom he sells it can present it at any time within a year, together with the exact amount of money that has been loaned, and receive the goods."

"If the goods are not removed within one year the Government must sell them and thus get back the money it has loaned. This is to prevent an accumulation of goods and to make sure that the money will be re-advanced. As soon as the farmer repays the loan or the Government sells the goods an amount of money is destroyed equal to the amount that was advanced. This, in all essential, is the Edison commodity money plan."

More Taxes. "Most men will be impressed by the fact that it involves additional taxes, additional curbs of political appointees and a vast extension of government control over industry. If the special privilege of borrowing money without interest is really a boon and is granted only to certain groups of producers, the list to be changed from time to time, somebody must decide who are to be the favored groups, and whether that somebody is Congress or Federal warehouse directors who are subject to partisan appointment and removal, the question who is to receive free money will undoubtedly remain in politics and will recurrently become of great moment as election day approaches.

"Mr. Edison contends that his commodity dollars will be sounder than gold dollars because 'there is the warehouse, lies the actual wealth, the thing we eat and wear and must consume to live.' At first, he says, only a few basic commodities are to be accepted, such as grain, cotton, wool, rice, legumes, fats, wax and tobacco. Manufactured articles, he warns us, will not be satisfactory for this purpose."

"If, then, a warehouse full of tobacco guarantees the soundness of the notes issued against it they must be redeemable in tobacco. They are, in fact, Federal Tobacco notes. The plan must provide in like manner for Federal Flax notes and so on. Furthermore, there would have to be as many different kinds of tobacco notes as there were grades of tobacco. Everyone who used money in exchange would need to have at hand the latest market quotations on all products accepted for storage, as they approached in market value the established loan value, in order to estimate the relative values of different kinds of dollars."

Salt Cakes Would Have to be Served Carefully. Whether he had Grade A Kippered Herring notes or Grade X Salt Cakes, if there was a strike of bituminous coal miners he would have to get rid of them. If there was a slump in cotton he would try to get rid of Cotton notes.

"Consider, on the other hand, the simplicity and definiteness of a gold-secured dollar. All the world knows precisely what is meant by the convertibility of a paper certificate into gold. All the world accepts the gold in exchange. Its value is known in every market. It is readily tested, stored, preserved, divided, transported. Moreover, there are the gold reserves, maintained for the very purpose of conversion and for no other and available on demand."

"From one of Mr. Edison's authorized statements, however, it seems that his plan does not provide for Federal Tobacco notes, Federal Flax notes and the like. In fact, it provides for no new kind of money whatever. No matter what commodity the farmer deposits with Federal agents, he takes his mortgage certificates to the national bank and there exchanges it for Federal Reserve notes. They are just like any other Federal Reserve notes."

"Very well. If there is nothing more than this in the much-discussed Edison plan for a commodity money that is sounder than gold money this part of the plan vanishes into thin air. The Edison money is not sounder than gold money, for it is gold money."

60.9 pounds of beef. In several recent years the consumption of pork alone has exceeded that of all other meats combined.

A study of the hog production industry included in the 1922 yearbook of the Department of Agriculture shows that among the farm animals hogs are exceeded in numbers only by cattle and in value only by cattle and horses. They are produced on three-fourths of the farms of the country and represent over ten percent of the value of the nation's agricultural production.

Nearly two-thirds of the commercial production of pork is in the corn belt. The amount of corn marketed in the form of hogs varies annually from 40 percent of the entire crop. Pork exports represent about 20 percent of the country's agricultural exports, and have held a higher place in foreign trade ever since colonial days. In 1793 the first year for which data will be available, there was exported approximately 6,000,000 pounds of pork and pork products.

Only 3.5 percent of the hogs on American farms are registered purebred, and about three-fourths of the total are raised for the market.

Cholera is still the most important disease among hogs and takes the highest toll. In 1922 more than 2, 700,000 hogs died of the disease, causing a financial loss of approximately $28,000,000.

Employees Buy Heavily Of Standard Oil Stock

Chicago, June 4.—Three years hence the employees of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) will be the largest single group of stockholders collectively, and will own more stock than any other individual or collective group of stockholders of the company if the employees patronize the stock purchasing plan in the next three years as they have in the last two. This announcement was made today by the company in commenting on the result of the plan during the two years of its existence.

The announcement says that of the 37,000 stockholders, 10,000 are now employees and have purchased stock under the plan, which provides that for every dollar an employee puts up for the purchase of stock the company will add 50 cents to the employee's credit in the purchase providing, however, that no employee can purchase more than an amount equal to 20 percent of his salary.

As soon as an amount sufficient to buy one share of stock is reached the purchase is made and dividends to the employee begin. At the end of five years all of the stock purchased in this manner is delivered to the employee.

A few concrete examples of how this plan works are interesting. Two years ago an office boy earning $30 a month contributed $10 of this monthly wage to purchasing stock. Today he has nine shares and with the small cash balance of $12.50 he has to his credit $575. His net profit is $340.

Another employee whose salary is $500 a month put in $100 to the purchase of stock. He has now 94 shares, which has a total value of $5,911. His net profit for the two years is $3,561.

BATEAU PASSING

Necklines curve more than in the past, with less tendency to the bateau and more use of the becoming V and round neck. For more formal evening frocks the shallow front line with a very décolleté back is featured.

? A Question a Day ?

Before you buy a car ask the salesman this question:

'Why don't you want me to buy by comparison—a silk merchant compares two fabrics to effect a sale—a furrier two pelts—a jeweler several diamonds, etc.—Do you, Mr. Salesman, when you buy a pair of shoes, have the salesman show you WHAT IS IN THE BOX or do you buy them because THE BOX looks good? Why shouldn't I use the same good judgment in buying an automobile?

(All cars look pretty on the Show Room floor, but the "insides" govern the life of your car and its cost of operation. We are not asking you to buy an OVERLAND—look them all over, but SEE the "insides"—then USE YOUR OWN JUDGMENT!

U. S. CAN AID IN REVETMENT OF MISSOURI

Letters Received by City Commission Say Work Can Be Done

Belief that the federal government through the United States Engineers will be able to undertake work of revetment of the Missouri River west bank north of the Northern Pacific railroad bridge, Bismarck, is expressed by Major-General Lansing H. Beach, chief of the U. S. Engineers, in a letter copy of which was received by the city commission. The letter was in response to representations made by the city to Senator Frazier as to the necessity of revetment work to prevent erosion which might result in danger to the Northern Pacific and Liberty Memorial bridges and approaches.

The chief of engineers said that the report of Major Geo. district engineer, Kansas City, Mo., who made an investigation on the ground, had not as yet been received.

"I believe that this department will be able to execute the work of cooperation with the Bureau of Public Roads and the Northern Pacific railroad as indicated," said Maj. Gen. Beach.

He said the district engineer was authorized last fall to undertake a survey of the river above Kansas City to determine the changes that have taken place since the last survey were made several years ago. Such a survey is necessary to plan the future work of improvement on the river.

Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, said that "we have had the question considered and find that if such work is necessary to protect the bridge and highway from possible destruction from overflow or from change of channel of the river, we can participate in the costs incident thereto from the federal road aid funds apportioned to the state of North Dakota. Such participation, however, would be subject in all respects to the usual rules and regulations pertaining to federal aid road work in this state."

The letters were both addressed to Senator Lynn J. Frazier and copies were forwarded to the city commission by Nelson A. Mason, his secretary.

A PHOTOPLAY WITH A PIG HUMAN IDEA
New Goldwyn Picture, "The Sin Flood," by Swedish Author, Henning Berger

A motion picture with a big human idea is such a rarity that when one is produced, the news ought to be widely heralded. There is every evidence that the new Goldwyn picture, "The Sin Flood," shown at the Capitol theatre tonight is a photoplay that will confirm the belief that a picture with a genuine idea has come to town.

The idea behind "The Sin Flood" is that human beings are so engrossed in their petty bickerings about material things that they have no time for things of the spirit.

The author has placed a number of quarrelling people in a threatening situation, where their thoughts are forced into spiritual channels. At once a brotherhood comes into being. All quarrels are forgotten. For the people concerned, there are no more struggles of the flesh. They believe that God has united them.

THE ELTINGE
One of the most beautiful scenes in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," Cosmopolitan's picture for Paramount of Charles Major's romance of the reign of King Henry VIII which shows at the Eltinge theatre for three days, beginning today, Tuesday, is the royal chapel where Princess Mary, portrayed by Marion Davies, the star, intercedes for Charles Brandon, who has been condemned to the block. The setting is a gem of Tudor architecture, with elaborately carved oak panels and lighted by stained glass windows copied from the originals in Hampton Court Palace in England. The Princess kneels before an ancient wood-carved statue of Saint Anne, herself a treasure of antiquity—and the composition and lighting of the scene make it resemble a mediaeval painting. The statue of Saint Anne was carved in the fifteenth century by Reinseider, a famous carver of that period, and is valued at $6,000.

What Co-operation Has Done

Little more than half a century ago, Gustavus F. Swift borrowed $20 from his father and started in the packing business.

Hard work on his part and on the part of the associates whom he presently gathered about him caused the business to grow.

When first incorporated, Swift & Company had six shareholders. The nation was growing and needed meat, and the young company grew also. As more money was needed the business was enlarged by enlisting the co-operation of more shareholders.

The first little plant at Barnstable, Mass., has given way to 23 modern packing plants strategically located. More than 400 branch houses and 600 car routes distribute the meat carried in more than 6,000 refrigerator cars.

Today Swift & Company's service in meat to retailers here and abroad represents the effort of nearly 100,000 people co-operating with their savings or daily toil.

More than 45,000 men and women have co-operated with us by investing their money in shares of Swift & Company.

Nearly 50,000 men and women who work in these offices, plants and branch houses—16,000 of whom also are shareholders—are giving us their co-operation in building the business. They take a just pride in the promptness and precision of its service and in the uniformity and high quality of its products. Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon, "Silverleaf" Brand Pure Lard, Premium Frankfurts and other Swift products are symbols of their hearty co-operation and of their belief in the Company.

U. S. CAN AID IN REVETMENT OF MISSOURI

Letters Received by City Commission Say Work Can Be Done

Benefit that the federal government through the United States Engineers will be able to undertake work of revetment of the Missouri River west bank north of the Northern Pacific railroad bridge, Bismarck, is expressed by Mayor-General Lansing A. Beach, chief of the U. S. Engineers, in a letter copy of which was received by the city commission. The letter is in response to representations made by the city to Senator Frazier to the necessity of revetment work to prevent erosion which might result in danger to the Northern Pacific and Liberty Memorial bridges and approaches.

The chief of engineers said that his report of Major G. E. district engineer, Kansas City, Mo., who made an investigation on the ground, had not as yet been received.

"I believe that this department will be able to execute the work of revetment with the Bureau of Public Roads and the Northern Pacific railroad as indicated," said Maj. Gen. Beach.

He said the district engineer was authorized last fall to undertake a survey of the river above Kansas City to determine the changes that have taken place since the last survey were made several years ago. Such a survey is necessary to plan the future work of improvement on the river.

Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, said that "we have had the question considered and find that if such work is necessary to protect the bridge and highway from possible destruction from overflow or from change of channel of the river, we can participate in the costs incident thereto from the federal road aid funds apportioned to the state of North Dakota. Such participation, however, would be subject in all respects to the usual rules and regulations pertaining to federal aid road work in this state."

The letters were both addressed to Senator Lynn J. Frazier and copies were forwarded to the city commission by Nelson A. Mason, his secretary.

AT THE MOVIES

A PHOTOPLAY WITH A BIG HUMAN IDEA

New Goldwyn Picture, "The Sin Flood," by Swedish Author, Henning Berger.

A motion picture with a big human idea is such a rarity that when one is produced, the news is everywhere. There is every evidence that the new Goldwyn picture, "The Sin Flood," shown at the Capitol theatre tonight is a photoplay that will confirm the belief that a picture with a genuine idea has come to town.

The idea behind "The Sin Flood" is that human beings are so engrossed in their petty bickerings about material things that they have no time for things of the spirit.

The author has placed a number of quarrelling people in a threatening situation, where their thoughts are forced into spiritual channels. At once a brotherhood comes into being. All quarrels are forgotten. For the people concerned, there are no more struggles of the flesh. They believe that God has united them.

THE ELTINGE

One of the most beautiful scenes in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Cosmopolitan's picturization for Paramount of Charles Major's romance of the reign of King Henry VIII which shows at the Eltinge theatre for three days, beginning today, Tuesday, is the royal chapel where Princess Mary, portrayed by Marion Davies, the star, intercedes for Charles Braden, who has been condemned to the block. The setting is a gem of Tudor architecture, with elaborately carved oaken panels and lighted by stained glass windows copied from the originals in Hampton Court Palace in England. The Princess kneels before an ancient wood-carved statue of Saint Anne, itself a treasure of antiquity—and the composition and lighting of the scene make it resemble a medieval painting. The statue of Saint Anne was carved in the fifteenth century by Reinschneider, a famous carver of that period, and is valued at $6,000.

What Co-operation Has Done

Little more than half a century ago, Gustavus F. Swift borrowed $20 from his father and started in the packing business.

Hard work on his part and on the part of the associates whom he presently gathered about him caused the business to grow.

When first incorporated, Swift & Company had six shareholders. The nation was growing and needed meat, and the young company grew also. As more money was needed the business was enlarged by enlisting the co-operation of more shareholders.

The first little plant at Barnstable, Mass., has given way to 23 modern packing plants strategically located. More than 400 branch houses and 600 car routes distribute the meat carried in more than 6,000 refrigerator cars.

Today Swift & Company's service in meat to retailers here and abroad represents the effort of nearly 100,000 people co-operating with their savings or daily toil.

More than 45,000 men and women have co-operated with us by investing their money in shares of Swift & Company.

Nearly 50,000 men and women who work in these offices, plants and branch houses—16,000 of whom also are shareholders—are giving us their co-operation in building the business. They take a just pride in the promptness and precision of its service and in the uniformity and high quality of its products. Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon, "Silverleaf" Brand Pure Lard, Premium Frankfurts and other Swift products are symbols of their hearty co-operation and of their belief in the Company.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

MUST SHOW AN INTEREST

Representatives of the Association of Commerce and state officials who entertained Major General Duncan and Col. Heaton of Omaha were impressed with their cordiality and their attitude toward North Dakota military matters. The showing made by the training schools in connection with the University and Agricultural College and the manner in which national guards matters have been handled were highly commended by these officers in command of the Seventh Corps area.

But the otherwise fine record was spoiled somewhat by the indifference Bismarck has shown toward her company of national guard, Company A. The old army was visited which the boys lost while across the seas whether legally or otherwise is still to be decided. Then the basement which serves merely as a store-house for the company, unfit for drilling, was inspected.

It was humiliating to say the least that such conditions could exist in the capital city where the National Guard company should be of first rank. The personnel of Company A is as fine as any in the guard but the fight for an armory has been an uphill one and promises to be a long drawn out legal contest to settle the damages for conversion of property which the supreme court in its decision has clearly pointed out was committed while the boys were fighting on Flanders field.

As an evidence of interest in national guard matters and a step which may have a bearing when the time comes in the reorganization of Fort Lincoln, the citizens of Bismarck should take an immediate interest in Company A and get behind them in their rather discouraging fight for an armory. This city must show that it is willing to cooperate in building here a company that can function properly reflecting civic interest in what the federal government is doing to build up the national guard as a line of the nation's defense.

Major General Duncan and Col. Heaton pointed out informally the asset a company of National Guard is to a city. Under the federal aid plan, the national guard affords the young man an excellent training and pays him for his time. This is quite an item from a payroll standpoint alone besides building up the morale of the young man and making him a better American citizen.

Bismarck was honored by the visit of these officers of the regular army. Both of them kindly, sympathetic and eager to build up in this state a fine military unit, they made an excellent impression upon the business men who were fortunate to meet them. Gen. Duncan in the Philippine war and later in the World war served with great distinction. He is a charming southern gentleman and was greatly impressed by the excellent location of Fort Lincoln and the hospitality shown here.

A special citizens committee should be appointed to back up Company A in its fight. Let's see that the boys have an adequate drill hall before the snow flies.

The courts will doubtless give the company its rights in time, but a little cooperation now will be of inestimable value.

ONG CHE

Without a cent to his name Ong Che, a Chinese coolie, arrived in Manila 15 years ago. He got busy, with a bland smile, a serene confidence, a tireless body. No job was too menial—anything to corral the loose nickels and dimes.

Included in Ong Che's make-up was the powerful seed, a sense of thrift. It took him three years to save $300. Then he went into the junk business. Now he buys anything "from a wire nail to a steamship" and is worth a million dollars. Ong Che is the new owner of the steamer Missoula, purchased from our army quartermaster department. When a penniless "Chink" can accumulate a million, surely the rest of us can never admit that the future is black and hopeless.

BONDS

Are you one of the hundreds of thousands who are salting away their money in bonds? If so, you'll be interested to learn that Harvard University, guided by its able economists, has four-fifths of its surplus funds in bonds and real estate mortgages.

The Harvard dollar is distributed so that, on the average, 29 cents is in railroad bonds, 26 cents in public utilities, 15 cents in industrial bonds, 8 cents in traction bonds, 4 cents in government obligations and 18 cents in real estate mortgages.

Apparently Harvard is banking on a good future for the railroads and public utilities. The figures are from the Harvard treasurer's report for 1921, just available.

AGO

H. D. Selton, army major, displays his prize belonging—the brass helmet worn by Magellan, Portuguese navigator whose expedition was first to sail around the world. It's a heavy affair. Richly carved, but most of us would as soon wear an iron bean pot.

Magellan died 402 years ago. His helmet survives, just as when he laid it aside for the last time. So does every particle of matter that made up his body. But that body wasn't Magellan, any more than his helmet was. The real Magellan is somewhere beyond the veil.

You may meet him later.

DANDELIONS

Many communities report dandelions becoming extinct. Home brewers are responsible for this, harvesting their wine ingredients before it has time to blossom, go to seed and spread.

So prohibition has at least one good feature, though the much cursed yellow flower of the dandelion is, after all, a thing of beauty that would be missed if it vanished altogether. It's 10 times as beautiful as grass. Probably why we kill it.

Scientists Prepare To Observe Eclipse At Catalina Island

Los Angeles, Calif., June 5.—When the shadow of the moon ends its diagonal dash across the Pacific September 10 next and strikes inland near Santa Catalina Island near here, pilgrims from all parts of the world will be on hand to watch the first total eclipse of the sun visible in the United States since 1918.

Regarded as the most important astronomical event of the year, the September eclipse will attract thousands of scientific men to southern California, and preparations have been made to facilitate the work of observers and to accommodate the various scientific organizations which will hold gatherings in this city in connection with the phenomenon.

While the total phase of the eclipse will be visible from Santa Catalina Island, several expeditions from American and European observatories will await the observation at Ensenada, Lower California, where the period of totality will last three minutes and 35 seconds, as against two minutes and 48 seconds at Santa Catalina.

Some of the scientists will photograph stars in the vicinity of the sun in an effort further to substantiate the Einstein theory, according to which light rays, being matter and therefore subject to the pull of gravitation, are deflected from their course by the proximity of a heavenly body.

Other observers will devote their attention to the corona, the golden emanation which extends outward from the sun past the border of the moon in every direction for hundreds of thousands of miles. With the spectroscopic they will watch for any chemical elements hitherto undetected in the solar atmosphere.

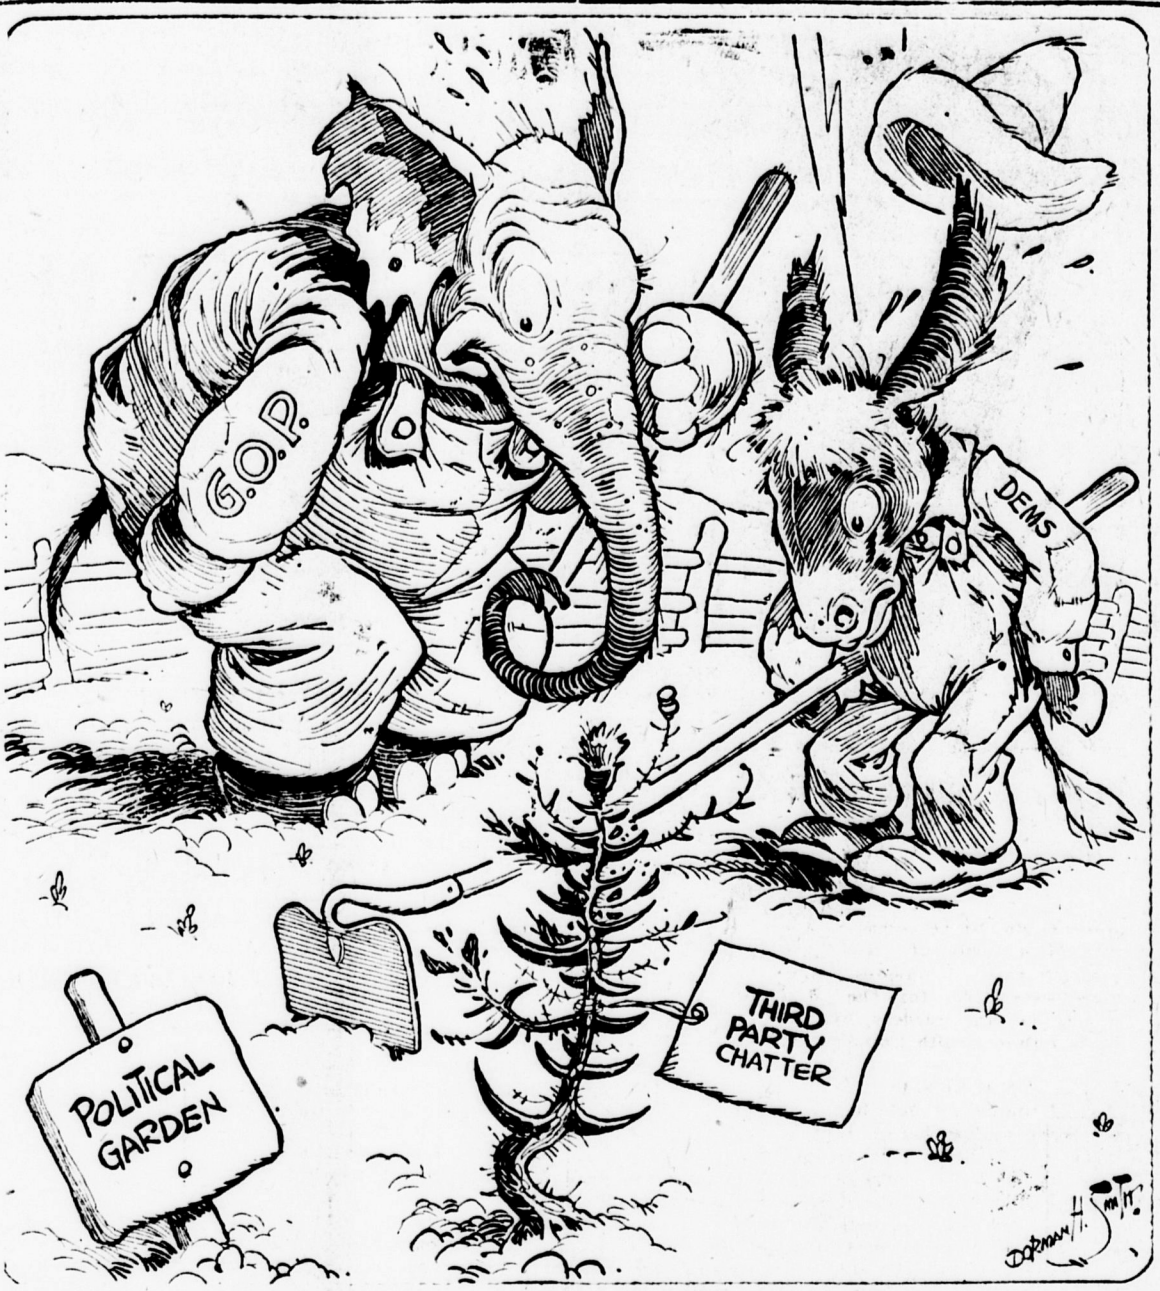

Still others will study the red prominences, supposed to be fiery matter projected from the sun's deep interior with enormous velocity and extending through the corona, and which change their form so rapidly that they are never precisely alike at two consecutive observing stations during the same eclipse.

The exact moment when the apparent edge of the moon touches that of the sun will be noted by still another group of astronomers for the purpose of procuring more precise data concerning the orbit of the moon, and in the hope of solving a lunar problem of some years' standing—that is, the small but as yet unexplained acceleration of the moon's motion in its swing around the earth.

Probably the largest band of observers, however, will come from that section of the general public which, though not deeply versed or interested in astronomy, periodically displays a feverish desire to occupy ringside seats at the bout between sun and moon.

Observers of this class will get the thrill of a lifetime, according to astronomers, who say that the approach of the lunar shadow, if watched from the high hills of Santa Catalina Island, will be a truly spectacular sight.

Now Who the Sam Hill Planted That in Here?

Looking northward about 12:00 o'clock on the afternoon of the eclipse, watchers on these hills will see the great dark shadow of the moon, more than a hundred miles in diameter, rushing toward them with incredible rapidity and overwhelming them with an abruptness that is terrifying.

Scene of Dempsey-Gibbons Go Named For Railroad Builder

Cleveland, Ohio, June 5.—The town of Shelby, Montana, where the heavyweight championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons is to be staged July 4, is named after one of the pioneer transcontinental railroad builders of America, Peter Paul Shelby, father of Mrs. F. J. Schmoldt, Cleveland Heights.

Mrs. Shelby was one of those actively engaged in the pioneer construction of the Union Pacific railroad. Upon the completion of that road he was made general traffic manager and remained with the Union Pacific for about 25 years. During that time he made a trip of 700 miles northward by sleigh to ascertain if it were worth while to build a branch line into Montana. As a result of his report, the branch was built.

Mr. Shelby afterwards became vice president of the Great Northern railroad under the late James J. Hill and aided in building that trunk line. It was while serving in that capacity that the town of Shelby, through which the Great Northern passes, was named for him.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

Nancy hurried down the magic steps of Raggy Land looking as if she had something on her mind.

"Mister Tatters, oh, Mister Tatters," she called. "Where are you? I've something to tell you."

The little Raggy man came hurrying up, wiping his hands on his overalls. "What is it?" he asked. "You look as though you had bad news."

"Well, it isn't so dreadful," answered Nancy, "but something is wrong. You remember how nice we fixed the grass lawn in front of Mrs. Brown's house? How we pulled out all the plantain weed and dandelions and weeds and everything and had it looking like a green velvet carpet?"

"Don't I just!" answered the little Raggy man looking at his hands. "I've got blisters yet. Well, what's happened to it?"

"Well, you just ought to see it now," announced Nancy. "Nick and I just passed it, and it's all covered with curlicues—the lawn is. Little hills about two inches high that go criss-cross and up and down and round in circles and every which way, it's simply ruined."

Mister Tatters went up the magic steps that led from Raggy Land, into the outside world. Then he went straight to Mrs. Brown's front lawn and there, just as Nancy had said, lay the lawn in lumpy ruins.

"Um, h'm!" nodded Mister Tatters. "What a mess!"

Then he went back to Raggy Land and down the magic steps.

Then he walked a distance under ground till he came to a queer house. Then he walked in without knocking.

"Mister Mole," he said sternly. "I want you to know that you've ruined Mrs. Brown's lawn. I'll fix it this time. But if you do it again, I'll fix you! Good day, sir. Please remember what I say."

The Tangle

An Entertaining Story of Love and Marriage

By Mrs. Joseph Graves Hamilton to her daughter, Mrs. Leslie Prescott

I have been somewhat worried about you, dear daughter, because I have not had a letter from you for over a week, but I expect that your unusual household tasks have kept you busy.

Alice is 'way up in the air and walking on sky-blue clouds tipped with gold because her father has consented to let her go abroad. She is leaving on the Mauretania two weeks from today.

I have received a cable from Mrs. Stokley, saying not to worry about Alice as she will meet her in Liverpool and take good care of her and, since they will be returning, when she is ready to come home, she will bring her safely home.

I don't think I would have consented to Alice's going at all if I had known that with the announced summer. Some way he is such a dependable chap and I know that he will give Alice an awfully good time and will be as careful of her as her own brother would. Already he and Alice have planned to do London in thorough fashion.

Karl, you know, ever since you and he were sweethearts, has seemed like one of the family.

If you show this letter to Jack, dear, tell him that I have never regretted for one moment giving you to him because I think it will do you both good in the long run. Some few worries in the beginning of your married life.

It was these that cemented the affection of your father and me so closely together. You come to know a person better if you hear troubles in those days.

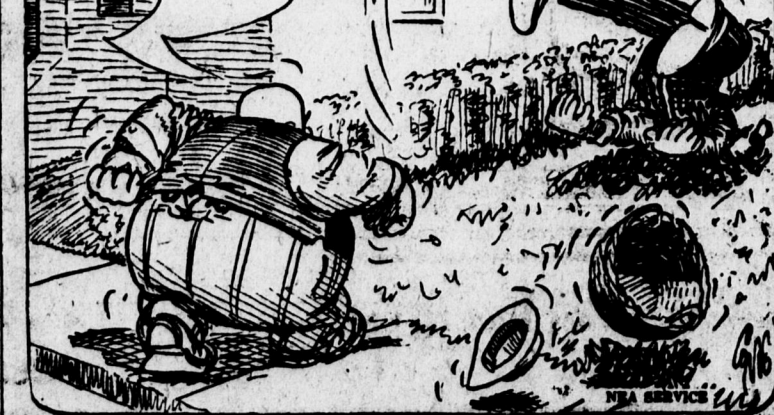

Until I see you, your loving, MOTHER.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Calvin Gray arrives in Dallas home of Colonel Henry Nelson, banker. Gray tells the colonel that because of his hatred for the banker he means to break him financially.

Nelson defies Gray. Barbara Parker buys land for the colonel. Gray hires Mallow and two associates to keep watch of the activities of Nelson in the oil fields. Gus Briskow strikes oil and Gray helps the family over the rough spots. Alice, the daughter, falls in love with Gray. Bud, the son, runs away from school and Gray follows to bring him home. He finds Bud in the hands of an adventuress.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY
"She's a. H. C. and, something. I was bashful about cullin' around to see her, not havin' anything to talk about but school an' oil wells, but she took an interest right away, specially in the wells. You'd ought to hear the story of her life, Mr. Gray. It's as sad as any novel. You see, her folks had lots of money, but her ma died an' her pa was too busy to be bothered, so he sent her out to a convent. Then, when she was 16, she was so cruel to her that she ran away."

"And went on the stage?"

"How'd you know?"

"I didn't. But—the stage is the usual refuge for convent-bred girls who are abused. I've met several. Did she—was the old home in Virginia?"

"Sure! Maybe you know her!" Bud, dy, cried.

"Perhaps. I seem to remember the story. What is her name?"

"Arline Montague."

The elder man shook his head. "You said something about a marriage. I dare say she married some rich John whose family disapproved of the match—so many show girls have been deceived like that. You can't imagine the prejudice of those Fifth Avenue Parents—"

"That's what she done. An' he went off an' joined the French Legion of Honor an' was killed."

"What is the estate you mentioned?"

"Oh, that's her own! It's all she had to fall back on. It's been settled up now an' she'll have her money before long."

"The old Virginia homestead and the slaves—?"

"Good thing she met me when she did, for them lawyers had all tied up in court and wouldn't let go till she paid their fees."

"A providential meeting, truly. You fixed that up, of course, and got rid of the wretched bloodsuckers. I've done much the same thing, more than once. Now, one other question—how does she happen to be in Dallas? I infer you from account that she is a model of virtue and that she accepted your aid only upon the condition that your attentions to her should be characterized by the deepest respect. So? Well then, 'how come?'"

"That was just a lucky chance. She's got some interests here; stocks an' things, belongin' to the estate. She dunno, herself, how valuable they are, but me comin' right from Texas an' bein' in oil an' all, she ast me to help her out. So I got her come. All that had kept her back was the expense. Mind you—"Buddy's tone became one of deeper admiration—"she ain't blase, or anything. No sir-ee! Her life's been sad, but you'd never know it. She's full of pep; allus out for fun, an'—that's what I like about her. Gee! You gotta meet her, Mr. Gray."

"Well, rather! But meanwhile, we must telegraph your parents not only that you have been found, but also the further good news."

"But we better not say anything about my gettin' married."

"Why not? They'd like to know."

Buddy stirred uneasily. "Why it's this way: I haven't ast her yet. Maybe she won't have me. If she says yes—I'll let 'em know."

"Good! We'll make it, for the time being, a mere message of reassurance. Tonight you and Miss Montague shall dine with me and we'll go to a theater."

Gray was prepared to find his young friend's light o' love superficially attractive, and she was all of that. He was not prepared, however, to find her quite as good an actress as she appeared to be. In spite of the fact that she probably took less pleasure in the meeting that did he, she admirably covered her feelings.

Gray's heart sank as he studied Miss Montague. She was blond—to his suspicious eye a trifle too blond—and she wore her hair bobbed. She was petite and both in appearance and in manner, she was girlish; nevertheless, she was self-reliant, and there was a certain maturity to her well-rounded figure, a suggestion of weariness about her eyes, that told a story.

Following his first critical appraisal, Gray was vaguely conscious of something familiar about her; somewhere within him the chords of remembrance were lightly brushed; but try as he would he could not make himself believe that he had ever seen her.

The elder man played host in his best and easiest style, both at dinner and at the theater. Then he passed the burden of entertainment over to Buddy, first cheerfully declaring that he would not be sidetracked and that he intended to impose his company upon the young couple whether they wanted him or not. This was precisely to young Briskow's liking, and soon they were speeding out to a road house mentioned earlier in the evening.

The resort was run on rather liberal principles; a number of flushed and noisy couples were dancing to the music of a colored orchestra. It was a "hip-pocket" crowd and while there was no public drinking, the high-pitched volubility of the merry-makers was plainly of alcoholic origin.

Gray realized that he was in for an ordeal, for he had become too well known to escape notice. Consternation filled him, therefore, at thought of the effect of his presence here might have. But the music went straight to Buddy's feet; a symphony of intoxication him much as the throbbing of midnight drums and the pounding of tom-toms mesmerize a voodoo worshiper, and he whirled Miss Montague away in his arms without so much as an apology to his other guest.

There was nothing com crative about Buddy's dancing. He embellished his steps with capricious figures, and when he led his partner back to the table where he had left Gray, like a sailor marooned upon a thirsty atoll, he was red faced and perspiring; his enthusiasm was boiling over.

"Dave-gone!" he cried. "Now, if we had something wet, ch? These pants is but purpose for a brace of form-fittin' flasks, but I left 'em in the room on account of you not drinkin' Mr. Gray."

In spite of the fact that Ozark Briskow was compelled to sit out every alternate dance in a disquieting condition of sobriety, the enjoyed himself, for he was playing host to the one woman and the one man for whom he cared most.

CHAPTER XXI

Fight to the Finish

"Why the S. O. S.?" Mallow voiced this question as he entered Gray's hotel room early the following evening.

"Sit down and light up while I tell you about it." In a few sentences Gray made known the story of Ozark Briskow's infatuation, and the reason for his own interest there in. "The woman is of the common 'get-rich-quick' variety," he concluded, "and she won't do."

"She didn't pull the family estate and her father's slaves and the orange grove on you, did she?"

"Oh no. She used that on Buddy and he believes it implicitly. We there are dining downstairs in an hour; perhaps you could look in on us?"

"Sure. I'll give her the once over." Mallow agreed. "If she's anybody in our set, I'll know her."

The dinner had scarcely started when Gray heard his name paged and left the table. In the lobby Mallow was waiting with a grin upon his face.

"That's her!" he inquired.

"That's the girl."

"Girl? 'Arline Montague,' eh? Her name is Margie Fulton, she had her hair up when they built the Union Pacific."

"Nonsense! You're mistaken. She can't be more than twenty-five—thirty at most."

"A woman can be as young as she wants to be if she'll pay the price. Margie had her face tucked up two years ago. Cost her five thousand bucks."

"I—can't believe it."

"Those face surgeons have ironed the wrinkles out of many a withered peach, and you're dining with Margie Fulton the Suicide Blonde. I know her kid."

"Her what?" Mallow's hearer gasped.

"Sure. She was married to Bennie Fulton, the jockey, and they had a boy. Bennie was ruled off in New Orleans and started gambling house."

"New Orleans! Wait—I'm beginning to remember." Into Gray's mind came an indistinct memory; the blurred picture of a race track with its shouting thousands, a crowded betting ring; then, more clearly, a garish, overfurnished room in a Southern mansion; clouds of tobacco smoke rising in the cones of bright light above roulette and poker tables; negro servants in white, with traps; mint juleps in tall, frosted glasses; a pretty girl with straw-colored hair—"You're right!" he agreed, finally. "She was a 'come-on'."

"That's her. She worked the betting ring daytimes and hoisted in Bennie's place at night. Whenever she was caught she suicided. That's how she got her name."

"Just what do you mean by that?"

"Why the usual stuff. A bottle of water with a poison label. If a mullet threatened to call the police, she'd cry, 'You have ruined my life!'"

Then with shaking hand she'd pull the old skull bottle and drink herself to death. Of course, the poor leaping tuna usually got the acid out of her hand in time to save her. She saw to that."

Gray was laughing silently. "My dear Professor," he confessed, "wisdom of a sort, is mine; sometimes I grow weary with the weight of my experiences and wonder why the world so seldom shows me something new. But beside you I am as a babe. Tell me, what has become of the ex-jockey husband?"

SUMMER CARE FOR BABY

EDITORS NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles on summer care of babies, prepared especially for The Bismarck Tribune readers by the U. S. Public Health Service.

MATERNITY

Care of the baby should begin with care of the mother before the birth of the baby. Each year in the United States 15,000 mothers die in childbirth and 250,000 babies die in their first year of life, nearly one-half of them from prenatal causes that could have been obviated. Every expectant mother should early consult a good physician or a well-conducted maternity clinic or health center and should have one complete physical examination, in the early months of pregnancy and another during the last month. For a first child the physician should measure the pelvis. Wasserman test of the blood shows that some expectant mothers require thorough medical treatment to insure not only her own but also her baby's health. Examination of the urine once a month up to the sixth month and once every 10 days or two weeks after that may save the mother's life.

Her food, if plain, wholesome and nutritious, may include anything that agrees with her. Pastries and fried food should, however, be avoided and tea and coffee used sparingly if at all. Four or five light meals instead of fewer heavy ones may help against morning sickness and vomiting.

Fresh Air Needed
If constipation is troublesome, as it may be in the later months, mild laxatives may be prescribed by the physician. Clothing should be loose and comfortable and should have no constricting bands, other, perhaps, than special maternity corsets.

One or two hours a day should be spent in the open air, preferably in walking or light exercise. Light household work is good, but the expectant mother should never be over-fatigued. She would best take one or two naps a day—with her feet elevated if the veins in the legs tend to enlarge. Heavy work, excessive use of the sewing machine, and heavy lifting, should be avoided in the later months. Pregnancy is no longer considered to bar dental work.

If the expectant mother has had a previous miscarriage she should take a complete rest for two or three days at the time when menstruation was to be expected.

During the last two months, preparation for nursing should be made, for few things are so important to the baby as the ability of its mother to nurse it; bottle-fed babies are four times as likely to die as breast-fed babies. Anoint the nipples nightly with white vaseline or oil, and carefully remove it in the morning with a bland soap and warm water. If the nipples are small, flat, or depressed, consult the physician.

Severe and constant vomiting, repeated or constant headache, dizziness, puffiness about the face, hands or legs, blurring of vision, spots before the eyes, scanty urine, muscular twitching convulsions or bleeding are warnings to call the doctor.

For two weeks after baby comes the mother should rest in bed, and for several weeks longer should do no really heavy work. Serious female troubles may follow disregard of this advice. Her food should be plentiful, nutritious and wholesome for, of course, the baby must be nursed at the breast. Plenty of milk and little or no tea or coffee is indicated.

Baby's daily life, nursing times, bath, sleep, and outdoor periods should be systematized. If baby is often fretful, seek the doctor's advice. Under no circumstances should it be given soothing syrups and the like.

Make sure that baby's birth has been registered. Registration may some day be extremely important to it. Ask the doctor if he has attended to this.

Kellogg's Bran is Guaranteed to give relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Relief from constipation, whether it is mild or chronic, will follow the regular, every-day eating of Kellogg's Bran. We have thousands of letters from former sufferers who tell us that the natural "bulk-action" of this wonderful cereal product has given relief they have not known for years. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will free the system from constipation because it is ALL BRAN—not a composition in which bran is added. If constipation is to be permanently relieved, you must eat ALL BRAN—that's why your physician will recommend Kellogg's for constipation.

Constipation creates toxic conditions which poison the blood and every organ of the body. It slows you down mentally and physically, and creates sick headaches, nausea, bad breath, pimples—finally, in many cases, leading to Bright's disease, diabetes and other dreaded illnesses. You must fight constipation with Kellogg's Bran regularly if you want health!

You'll say Kellogg's Bran is really delicious—it has a nut-like flavor that appeals to the most fastidious appetite. Eat it as a cereal, sprinkled on hot or cold cereals or cooked with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls of bran for each person. Be certain to eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; as much with each meal in chronic cases. Kellogg's is delicious made into muffins, macaroons, raisin bread, griddlecakes. Recipes in every package. Kellogg's Bran is served by leading hotels, clubs and restaurants in individual packages. It is sold by all grocers.

SUMMER CARE FOR BABY

EDITORS NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles on summer care of babies, prepared especially for The Bismarck Tribune readers by the U. S. Public Health Service.

MATERNITY

Care of the baby should begin with care of the mother before the birth of the baby. Each year in the United States 15,000 mothers die in childbirth and 250,000 babies die in their first year of life, nearly one-half to them from prenatal causes that could have been avoided.

Every expectant mother should early consult a good physician or a well-conducted maternity clinic or health center and should have one complete physical examination, in the early months of pregnancy and another during the last month. For a first child the physician should measure the pelvis.

A Wasserman test of the blood shows that some expectant mothers require thorough medical treatment to insure not only her own but also her baby's health.

Examination of the urine once a month up to the sixth month and once every 10 days or two weeks after that may save the mother's life.

Her food, if plain, wholesome and nutritious, may include anything that agrees with her. Pastries and fried food should, however, be avoided and tea and coffee used sparingly if at all. Four or five light meals instead of fewer heavy ones may help against morning sickness and vomiting.

Fresh Air Needed

If constipation is troublesome, as it may be in the later months, mild laxatives may be prescribed by the physician. Clothing should be loose and comfortable and should have no constricting bands, other, perhaps, than special maternity corsets.

One or two hours a day should be spent in the open air, preferably in walking or light exercise. Light household work is good, but the expectant mother should never be over-fatigued. She would best take one or two naps a day—with her feet elevated if the veins in the legs tend to enlarge. Heavy work, excessive use of the sewing machine, and heavy lifting, should be avoided in the later months. Pregnancy is no longer considered to be a dental work.

If the expectant mother has had a previous miscarriage she should take a complete rest for two or three days at the time when menstruation was to be expected. A bloody discharge calls for the physician at once.

During the last two months, preparation for nursing should be made, for few things are so important to the baby as the ability of its mother to nurse it; bottle-fed babies are four times as likely to die as breast-fed babies. Anoint the nipples nightly with white vaseline or abalone, and carefully remove it in the morning with a bland soap and warm water. If the nipples are small, flat, or depressed, consult the physician.

Severe and constant vomiting, repeated or constant headache, dizziness, puffiness about the face, hands or legs, blurring of vision, spots before the eyes, scanty urine, muscular twitching convulsions or bleeding are warnings to call the doctor.

For two weeks after baby comes the mother should rest in bed; and for several weeks longer should do no really heavy work. Serious female troubles may follow disregard of this advice. Her food should be plentiful, nutritious and wholesome for, of course, the baby must be nursed at the breast. Plenty of milk and little or no tea or coffee is indicated.

Baby's daily life, nursing times, bath, sleep, and outdoor periods should be systematized. If baby is often fretful, seek the doctor's advice. Under no circumstances should it be given soothing syrups and the like.

Make sure that baby's birth has been registered. Registration may be extremely important to it. Ask the doctor if he has attended to this.

Dance at Patterson Hall Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Kellogg's Bran is Guaranteed to give relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Relief from constipation, whether it be mild or chronic, will follow the regular, every-day eating of Kellogg's Bran. We have thousands of letters from former sufferers who tell us that the natural "bulk-action" of this wonderful cereal product has given relief they have not known for years. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will free the system from constipation because it is ALL BRAN—not a composition in which bran is added. If constipation is to be permanently relieved, you must eat ALL BRAN—that's why your physician will recommend Kellogg's for constipation.

Constipation creates toxic conditions which poison the blood and every organ of the body. It slows you down mentally and physically, and creates sick headaches, nausea, bad breath, pimples—finally, in many cases, leading to Bright's disease, diabetes and other dreaded illnesses. You must fight constipation with Kellogg's Bran regularly if you want health!

You'll say Kellogg's Bran is really delicious—it has a nut-like flavor that appeals to the most fastidious appetite. Eat it as a cereal, sprinkled on hot or cold cereals or cooked with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls of bran for each person. Be certain to eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; as much with each meal in chronic cases. Kellogg's is delicious made into muffins, macaroons, raisin bread, griddlecakes. Recipes in every package. Kellogg's Bran is served by leading hotels, clubs and restaurants in individual packages. It is sold by all grocers.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

MUST SHOW AN INTEREST

Representatives of the Association of Commerce and state officials who entertained Major General Duncan and Col. Heaton of Omaha were impressed with their cordiality and their attitude toward North Dakota military matters. The showing made by the training schools in connection with the University and Agricultural College and the manner in which national guards matters have been handled were highly commended by these officers in command of the Seventh Corps area.

But the otherwise fine record was spoiled somewhat by the indifference Bismarck has shown toward her company of national guard, Company A. The old armory was visited which the boys lost while across the seas whether legally or otherwise is still to be decided. Then the basement which serves merely as a store-house for the company, unfit for drilling, was inspected.

It was humiliating to say the least that such conditions could exist in the capital city where the National Guard company should be of first rank. The personnel of Company A is as fine as any in the guard but the fight for an armory has been an uphill one and promises to be a long drawn out legal contest to settle the damages for conversion of property which the supreme court in its decision has clearly pointed out was committed while the boys were fighting on Planders field.

As an evidence of interest in national guard matters and a step which may have a bearing when the time comes in the regarrisoning of Fort Lincoln, the citizens of Bismarck should take an immediate interest in Company A and get behind them in their rather discouraging fight for an armory. This city must show that it is willing to cooperate in building here a company that can function properly reflecting civic interest in what the federal government is doing to build up the national guard as a line of the nation's defense.

Major General Duncan and Col. Heaton pointed out informally the asset a company of National Guard is to a city. Under the federal aid plan, the national guard affords the young man an excellent training and pays him for his time. This is quite an item from a payroll standpoint alone besides building up the morale of the young man and making him a better American citizen.

Bismarck was honored by the visit of these officers of the regular army. Both of them kindly, sympathetic and eager to build up in this state a fine military unit, they made an excellent impression upon the business men who were fortunate to meet them. Gen. Duncan in the Philippine war and later in the World war served with great distinction. He is a charming southern gentleman and was greatly impressed by the excellent location of Fort Lincoln and the hospitality shown here.

A special citizens committee should be appointed to back up Company A in its fight. Let's see that the boys have an adequate drill hall before the snow flies.

The courts will doubtless give the company its rights in time, but a little cooperation now will be of inestimable value.

ONG CHE

Without a cent to his name Ong Che, a Chinese coolie, arrived in Manila 15 years ago. He got busy, with a bland smile, a serene confidence, a tireless body. No job was too menial—anything to corral the loose nickels and dimes.

Included in Ong Che's make-up was the powerful seed, a sense of thrift. It took him three years to save $300. Then he went into the junk business. Now he buys anything "from a wire nail to a steamship" and is worth a million dollars. Ong Che is the new owner of the steamer Missoula, purchased from our army quartermaster department. When a penniless "Chink" can accumulate a million, surely the rest of us can never admit that the future is black and hopeless.

BONDS

Are you one of the hundreds of thousands who are salting away their money in bonds? If so, you'll be interested to learn that Harvard University, guided by its able economists, has four-fifths of its surplus funds in bonds and real estate mortgages.

The Harvard dollar is distributed so that, on the average, 29 cents is in railroad bonds, 26 cents in public utilities, 15 cents in industrial bonds, 8 cents in traction bonds, 4 cents in government obligations and 18 cents in real estate mortgages.

Apparently Harvard is banking on a good future for the railroads and public utilities. The figures are from the Harvard treasurer's report for 1921, just available.

AGO

H. D. Selson, army major, displays his prize belonging—the brass helmet worn by Magellan, Portuguese navigator whose expedition was first to sail around the world. It's a heavy affair. Richly carved, but most of us would as soon wear an iron bean pot.

Magellan died 402 years ago. His helmet survives, just as when he laid it aside for the last time. So does every particle of matter that made up his body. But that body wasn't Magellan, any more than his helmet was. The real Magellan is somewhere beyond the veil.

You may meet him later.

Many communities report dandelions becoming extinct. Home brewers are responsible for this, harvesting their wine ingredients before it has time to blossom, go to seed and spread.

Scientists Prepare To Observe Eclipse At Catalina Island

Los Angeles, Calif., June 5.—When the shadow of the moon and its diaphanous dash across the Pacific September 10 next and strikes inland near Santa Catalina Island near here, pilgrims from all parts of the world will be on hand to watch the first total eclipse of the sun visible in the United States since 1918.

Regarded as the most important astronomical event of the year, the September eclipse will attract thousands of scientific men to southern California, and preparations have been made to facilitate the work of observers and to accommodate the vast number of excursionists which will hold gatherings in this city in connection with the phenomenon.

While the total phase of the eclipse will be visible from Santa Catalina Island, several expeditions from American and European observatories will await the observation at Ensenada, Lower California, where the period of totality will last three minutes and 35 seconds, as against two minutes and 48 seconds at Santa Catalina.

Some of the scientists will photograph stars in the vicinity of the sun in an effort further to substantiate the Einstein theory, according to which light rays being matter and therefore subject to the pull of gravitation, are deflected from their course by the proximity of a heavenly body.

Other observers will devote their attention to the corona, the golden emanation which extends outward from the sun past the border of the moon in every direction for hundreds of thousands of miles. With the spectroscopic they will watch for any chemical elements hitherto undetected in the solar atmosphere.

Still others will study the red prominences, supposed to be fiery matter projected from the sun's deep interior with enormous velocity, and extending through the corona, and which change their form so rapidly that they are never precisely alike at two consecutive observing stations during the same eclipse.

The exact moment when the apparent edge of the moon touches that of the sun will be noted as well as other group of astronomers for the purpose of procuring more precise data concerning the orbit of the moon, and in the hope of solving a lunar problem of some years' standing—that is, the small but as yet unexplained acceleration of the moon's motion in its swing around the earth.

Probably the largest band of observers, however, will come from that section of the general public which, though not deeply versed or interested in astronomy, periodically displays a feverish desire to occupy ring-side seats at the bout between sun and moon.

Observers of this class will get the thrill of a lifetime, according to astronomers, who say that the approach of the lunar shadow, if watched from the high hills of Santa Catalina Island, will be a truly spectacular sight.

Now Who's the Sam Hill Planted That in Here?

Looking northward about 12:30 o'clock on the afternoon of the eclipse, watchers on those hills will see the great dark shadow of the moon, more than a hundred miles in diameter, rushing toward them with incredible rapidity and overwhelming them with an abruptness that is terrifying.

While the total eclipse will not be visible in Los Angeles, nineteen-twenty-two, the sun's disc will be hidden, leaving only a narrow, bright crescent and plunging the city into temporary gloom.

Scene of Dempsey-Gibbons Go Named For Railroad Builder

Cleveland, Ohio, June 5.—The town of Shelby, Montana, where the heavy-weight championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons is to be staged July 4, is named after one of the pioneer transcontinental railroad builders of America, Peter Paul Shelby, father of Mrs. F. J. Schmoltd, Cleveland Heights.

Mrs. Shelby was one of those actively engaged in the pioneer construction of the Union Pacific railroad. Upon the completion of that road he was made general traffic manager and remained with the Union Pacific for about 25 years. During that time he made a trip of 700 miles northward by sleigh to ascertain if it were worth while to build a branch line into Montana. As a result of his report, the branch was built.

Mrs. Shelby afterwards became vice president of the Great Northern railroad under the late James J. Hill and aided in building that trunk line. It was while serving in that capacity that the town of Shelby, through which the Great Northern passes, was named for him.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

Nancy hurried down the marble steps of Raggy Land looking as if she had something on her mind. "Mister Tatters, oh, Mister Tatters," she called. "Where are you? I've something to tell you."

The little Raggy man came hurrying up, wiping his hands on his overalls. "What is it?" he asked. "Look as though you had been hurt!" answered Nancy. "But something's wrong. You remember how nicely we fixed the grass lawn in front of Mrs. Brown's house? How we pulled out all the plantain weed and dandelion and dock-weeds and everything and had it looking like a green velvet carpet?"

"Don't I just!" answered the little Raggy man, looking at his hands. "I've got blisters yet. Well, what's happened to it?"

"Well, you just ought to see it now," announced Nancy. "Nick and I just passed it, and it's all covered with curlicues—the lawn is Little Nick about two inches high that go all over it and up and down and round in circles and every which way. It's simply ruined!"

Mister Tatters went up the magic steps that led from Raggy Land, into the outside world. Then he went straight to Mrs. Brown's front lawn and there, just as Nancy had said, lay the lawn in lumpy ruins.

"Oh, my!" muttered Mister Tatters. "I see—see—see!" Then he went back to Raggy Land and down the magic steps.

Then he walked a distance under ground till he came to a queer house. Then he walked in without knocking.

"Mister Mole," he said sternly. "I want you to know that you've ruined Mrs. Brown's lawn. I'll fix it this time. But if you do it again, I'll fix you! Good day, sir. Please remember what I say."

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO HER DAUGHTER, MRS. LESLIE BRESKOTT

I have been somewhat worried about you, dear daughter, because I have not had a letter from you for over a week, but I expect that your unusual household tasks have kept you busy.

Alice is 'way up in the air and walking on sky blue clouds. Tipped with gold, because her father has consented to let her go abroad. She is leaving on the Mauretania two weeks from today.

I have received a cable from Mrs. Stokely, saying not to worry about Alice as she will meet her in Liverpool and take good care of her and since they will be returning when she is ready to come home, she will bring her safely home.

I don't think I would have consented to Alice's going at all if Karl Whitely had not been going over this summer. Some way I know that a dependable ship and I know that he will give Alice an awfully good time and will be as careful of her as her own brother would. Already he and Alice have planned to do London in thorough fashion.

Karl, you know, ever since you and he were sweethearts, has seemed like one of the family.

If you show this letter to Jack, dear, tell him that I have never regretted for one moment giving you to him because I think it will do you both good to have some few wiles in the beginning of your married life.

It was these that cemented the affection of your father—and me—so closely together. You come to know a person better if you hear troubles.

and grief together. The man or woman who wrote that song, "Strangely, You'll Remember Only 'Traveled in Far Lands' and 'Touched Wedded Hands.'" He didn't know the sad happiness of a head bowed with grief upon the breast of the other whose tears are mingled with yours. He did not know the feeling of standing side by side, facing the whole world when you thought its thumbs were turned down.

I am sure he did not know the anxiety of sitting beside a little child with his hands clasped in the hands of his wife while they watched over the fitful breathing of a sick child, hoping, praying, that it might live.

No, my daughter, I know it is the fashion to try and slip out of the sorrows of this world; I know it is the fashion to feel very much of a martyr if everything is not cake and ale when it comes your way. I also know that with the annoyances of the pain, the grief, the unhappiness which has come to your father and me, has always come Love. That Love, who sometimes stays away when one is on pleasure bent and always looking for joy and thrills.

Alice wants you to come to New York to see her off. You might run down on the evening boat, getting there in the morning. If you do this, I think your father and I will come back with you and spend a couple of days before we go on home.

Dad says he wants to see if you can cook as well as I did when we were first married. I tell him I know you can do it better for, between you and me, I was not a very good cook those days.

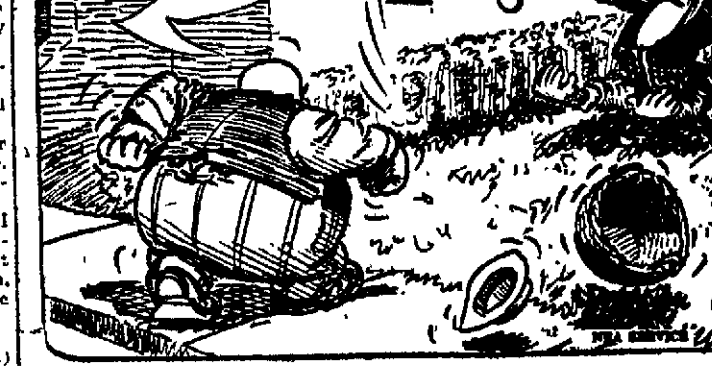

Until I see you, your loving MOTHER.

EVERETT TRUE BY CONDO

WHAT'S THE IDEA IN DUMPING RUBBISH OVER HERE IN THIS LOT?

NOT AS VACANT AS SOME PERSONS!!!

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray arrives in Dallas home of Colonel Henry Nelson, banker. Gray tells the colonel that because of his hatred for the banker he means to break him financially.

Nelson defies Gray. Barbara Parker buys land for the colonel. Gray hires Mallow and two associates to keep watch of the activities of Nelson in the oil fields. Gus Briskow strikes oil and Gray helps the family over the rough spots. Allie, the daughter, falls in love with Gray. Bud, the son, runs away from school and Gray follows to bring him home. He finds Bud in the hands of arm adventurers.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"She was. He's dead, or something. I was bashful about calling around to see her, not havin' any thing to talk about but school and all that. But she took an interest right away, specially in the wells. You'd ought to hear the story of her life, Mr. Gray. It's as sad as any novel. You see, her folks had lots of money, but her ma died and her pa was too busy to be bothered, so he sent her off to a convent. Them nuns at the convent was so cruel to her that she ran away."

"And went on the stage?" "How'd you know?" "I didn't. But the stage is the usual refuge for convent-bred girls who are abused. I've met several. Did she—Was the old home in Virginia?"

"Sure! Maybe you know her!" Buddy cried. "Perhaps. I seem to remember the story. What is her name?" "Arlene Montague."

The elder man shook his head. "You said something about a marriage. I dare say she married some rich John whose family disapproved of the match—many show girls have been deceived like that. You can't imagine the prejudice of those Fifth Avenue Parents."

"That's what she does. An' he went off an' joined the French Legion of Honor an' was killed."

"What is the estate you mentioned?" "Oh, that's her own! It's all she had to fall back on. It's been settled up now an' she'll have her money before long."

"The old Virginia homestead and the slaves?"

"Good thing she met me when she did, for them lawyers had it all tied up in court and wouldn't let go till she paid their fees."

"A providential meeting, truly. You fixed that up, of course, and got rid of the wretched bloodsuckers. I've done much the same thing, more than once. Now one other question—how does she happen to be in Dallas? I infer you from account that she is a model of virtue and that she accepted your aid only upon the condition that your attentions to her should be characterized by the deepest respect. So? Well then, 'how come?'"

"That was just a lucky chance. She's got some interests here; stocks an' things, belongin' to the estate. She dunno, herself, how valuable they are, but me comin' right from Texas an' bein' in oil an' all, she ast me to help her out. So I got her to come. All that had kep' her back was the expense. Mind you—Buddy's time became one of deeper attraction—'she ain't blue or any thing. No sir! Her life's been sad, but you'd never know it. She's full of pep; allus out for fun, an' that's what I like about her. Gee! You gotta meet her, Mr. Gray."

"Well, rather! But meanwhile, we must telegraph your parents not only that you have been found, but also the further good news."

"I—We better not say anything about my gettin' married."

"Buddy stirred uneasily. 'Why it's this way; I haven't ast her yet. Maybe she won't hear me if I say yes—I'll let 'em know.'"

"Good! We'll make it for the time being, a mere message of reassurance. Tonight you and Miss Montague shall dine with me and we'll go to a theater."

Gray was prepared to find his young friend's light of love superficially attractive, and she was all of that. He was not prepared, however, to find her quite as good an actress as she appeared to be. In spite of the fact that she probably took less pleasure in the meeting than did he, she admirably covered her feelings.

Gray's heart sank as he studied Miss Montague. She was blond—to his suspicious eye a trifle too blond—and she wore her hair bobbed. She was petite and both in appearance and in mannerism, she was girlish; nevertheless, she was self-reliant, and there was a certain maturity to her well-rounded figure, a suggestion of weariness about her eyes, that told a story.

Following his first critical appraisal, Gray was vaguely conscious of something familiar about her; somewhere within him the chords of remembrance were lightly brushed; but try as he would he could not make himself believe that he had ever seen her.

The elder man played host in his best and easiest style, both at dinner and at the theater; then he passed the burden of entertainment over to Buddy, and finally cheerfully declaring that he would not be intruded and that he intended to sidetrack his company upon the young couple whether they wanted him or not. This was precisely to young Briskow's liking, and soon they were speeding out to a road house mentioned earlier in the evening.

The resort was run on rather liberal principles; a number of flushed and noisy couples were dancing to the music of a colored orchestra. It was a "hip-pocket" crowd and while there was no polite drinking, the high-pitched volubility of the merry-makers was plainly of alcoholic origin.

Gray realized that he was in for an ordeal, for he had become too well known to escape notice. Consternation filled him, therefore, at thought of the effect of his presence here might have. But the music went straight to Buddy's feet; a symphony intoxicated him much as the throbbing of midnight drums and the pounding of tom-toms maddened a wild Miss Montague away in his arms without so much as an apology to his other guest.

There was nothing so enervating about Buddy's dancing. He embellished his steps with capricious figures, and when he led his partner back to the table where he nudged Gray, like a sailor marooned upon a thirsty atoll, he was fed and perspiring; his enthusiasm was boiling over.

"Now, if we had something wet, eh? These pants is out purpose for a brace of form-fittin' flasks, but I left 'em in the room on account of you not drinkin' Mr. Gray."

In spite of the fact that Ozark Briskow was compelled to sit out every alternate dance in a distressing condition of sobriety, he enjoyed himself, for he was playing host to the one woman and the one man for whom he cared most.

CHAPTER XXI

Fight to the Finish

"Why the S. O. S.?" Mallow voiced this question as he entered Gray's hotel room early the following evening.

"Sit down and light up while I tell you about it." In a few sentences Gray made known the story of Ozark Briskow's infatuation, and the reason for his own interest there in. "The woman is one of the common 'gee-rich-quick' variety," he concluded, "and she won't do."

"She didn't pull the family estate and her father's slaves and the orange grove on you, did she?" "Oh no. She used that on Buddy and he believes it implicitly. We three are dining downstairs in an hour; perhaps you could look in on us."

"Sure. I'll give her the once over, Mallow agreed. 'If she's anybody in our set, I'll know her.'"

The dinner had scarcely started when Gray heard his name paged and left the table. In the lobby Mallow was waiting with a grin upon his face.

"Is that her?" he inquired. "That is the girl."

"Girl? 'Arlene Montague,' eh? Her name is Margie Fulton and she had her hair up when they built the Union Pacific."

"Nonsense! You're mistaken. She can't be more than twenty-five—thirty at the most."

"A woman can be as young as she wants to be if she'll pay the price. Margie had her face tuckered up two years ago. Cost her five thousand bucks."

"I—can't believe it." "Those face surgeons have ironed the wrinkles out of many a withered peach, and you're dining with Margie Fulton the Suicide Blonde. A know her kid."

"Her what?" Mallow's hearer gasped. "She was married to Bennie Fulton, the jockey, and they had a boy. Bennie was ruled off in New Orleans and ast started 'symboling house.'"

"New Orleans! Wait—I'm beginning to remember." Into Gray's mind came an indistinct memory; the blurred picture of a race track with its shouting thousands, a crowded betting ring; then, more clearly, a garish, over-furnished room in a Southern mansion; clouds of tobacco smoke rising in the cones of bright light above roulette and poker tables; negro servants in white, with traps; mint juleps in tall, frosted glasses; a pretty girl with straw-colored hair—"You're right!" he agreed, finally. "She was a 'come-on'."

"That's her. She worked the betting ring daytimes and boasted in Bennie's place at night. Whenever she was caught she suicided. That's how she got her name."

"Just what do you mean by that?" "Why the usual stuff. A bottle of water with a poison label. If a mullet threatened to call the police, she'd cry, 'You have ruined my life!' Then with shaking hand she'd pull the old skull bottle and drink herself to death. Of course, the poor leaping tuna usually got the acid out of her hand in time to save her. She saw to that."

Gray was laughing silently. "My dear Professor," he confessed, "wisdom, a head is mine; sometimes I grow weary with the weight of my experiences and wonder why the world so seldom shows me something new. But beside you I am as a babe. Tell me, what has become of the ex-jockey husband?"

ROBINS AGAIN ADVANCE OVER NATIONAL FOES

Defeat Pittsburgh in Battle For Second Place in National League

RUTH FALLS BEHIND

Chicago, June 5.—The Brooklyn Robins, continuing their marvelous pace, are tied for second place with Pittsburgh today as a result of their victory over the Pirates yesterday, 5 to 3. The Brooklyn aggregation drew a half game nearer the league leading Giants as the latter team was idle. The Robins apparently are making their own opportunity for Pittsburgh now is counted the strongest team in the west.

The Philadelphia Athletics, back for a prolonged stay on their own ground, will hold receptions for the western teams they found so easy. The Yanks, too, will be receiving western visitors for the time being, losing yesterday to Washington 5 to 2 and the third straight defeat.

Of two sensational teams of the major league, Brooklyn is going better. It was the fury of its attack that won over the Pirates yesterday for the Robins had won 12 out of 13 games on their home lot here and had been fairly successful on the road. The Robins were outbatted but their blows were timely.

Cincinnati continued to lose opportunities by losing to Chicago 8 to 7, in the ninth inning after they had the game won.

"Cy" Williams of the Phillies is widening the gap between himself and Babe Ruth, his American League rival for home run honors. Babe managed to pole a triple off Zimmerman of Washington while Williams smashed out his 20th circuit drive off Fillingim of Boston. Ruth's total of home runs is 11.

The western clubs of the American League are starting their invasion of the east today while the western clubs of the National League are advancing on the west.

MINOT TAKES LAST GAME OF TWIN SERIES

Minot, June 6.—Minot pounded Ryan hard and won the final game of the series from Carrington New Rockford yesterday, 8 to 2. Lofler allowed 11 hits but kept them well scattered and was backed by poor support. Minot won four out of the seven game series, and one was tied.

The score:

Carrington-New Rockford	100	010	000	—2	11
Minot	231	200	008	—8	12

Batteries: Ryan and Lupe, Lofler and Worner.

Three Tied in Emmons County League Race

Napoleon, N. D., June 5.—Napoleon defeated Strasburg here Sunday by score of 2 to 0, and Hazelton won over Linton at Linton, 4 to 2.

This leaves Napoleon, Linton and Strasburg in the cellar position, in the Emmons-Logan League.

The game at Napoleon was fast and cleanly played. The Naps made their two scores in the first inning.

Stephen Meier, pitching for Napoleon, struck out 10 men and allowed 4 hits. Russ Volk for Strasburg struck out 9 men and allowed 6 hits. Napoleon made one error and Strasburg 2.

With three games of the twelve-game schedule played, the standing is as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Napoleon	2	1	.666
Hazelton	2	1	.666
Linton	2	1	.666
Strasburg	0	3	.000

Beginner Should Hit The Ball Before Turf

While the golf beginner may have plenty of trouble trying to hit the ball at all, especially when he is trying a full swing, it is just as well from the time of first taking up the game to try to acquire the habit of hitting the ball before hitting the ground, particularly with the mashie.

That is the general way of attaining backspin and in these modern days, when courses are so thoroughly bunkered and greens so carefully guarded, it is almost obligatory to have backspin to get anywhere in the competitive ranks as well as to get the most enjoyment out of the game.

It is galling for one man to see his playing companion or opponent stick a ball on a green and see it stop after rolling a comparatively few feet, while his own ball hits almost anywhere in the competitive ranks like a scared rabbit across the green.

Watch the star golfers and if you get a chance mark in some way the spot where the ball rests and the note where the mashie digs in to the turf. You will find the break in the turf almost invariably in advance of the spot where the ball rested.

The club has hit the ball on the down stroke and as the ball passes over the face of the club it is set

Only Two Records Remain Between Tyrus Cobb And Absolute Baseball Supremacy

BY BILLY EVANS

Two records alone remain between Cobb and absolute supremacy in baseball. Those two records are held by Honus Wagner.

The great Wagner of other days still holds the lead in total number of hits, and also has the edge in total number of bases.

Wagner's total number of hits, 3430, cover 21 years of major league campaigning. At the opening of the season Cobb had 3266 hits to his credit. In order to top Wagner's record, the Detroit leader must make 165 hits during the 1923 campaign.

Unless illness or injury put him out of the running, he will put Wagner's base-hit record into the discard before the close of the present season.

Wagner's total number of bases for his 3430 hits amount to 4881. It would be asking too much to have Cobb top that feat this year, but it is certain to be beaten by Cobb before he closes his major league career. Then Cobb will have attained about all the glory there is in the record book.

Cobb has played more games than any other player in the history of the American League. He has gone through more campaigns—18. He leads in the number of hits, total bases and extra base hits.

His lifetime batting average is .372, far in excess of any player who has worked 10 years or more in the majors. He has batted .400 or better in three seasons, equalling Jesse Burkett's record. He has batted .300 or better for 17 consecutive seasons.

Wagner has turned the same trick. Cobb will pass it this year. He has more 200 or more hits in each of eight seasons, equalling Willie Keeler's mark.

It is a rather interesting fact that Cobb broke the greatest number of runs record by his own individual effort. A home run off Pitcher Charley Robertson of Chicago on May 24, made the 17424 run scored during his 19 years in the big show against 21 for Wagner, who made 1741 runs during that length of time.

Wagner is the only player close to Cobb in lifetime averages. Third in ranking is Larry Lajoie. Cobb and Wagner have a wide margin on the great Larry. This trio easily leads the remainder of the field.

George Sisler is the only man who has threatened Cobb's list of achievements since the Georgian started his super-career. The trouble that Sisler recently suffered to his eyes appears to have destroyed any chance the St. Louis star had of equalling Cobb's feats.

Last year, Sisler in batting safely in 41 consecutive games, topped Cobb's record in that respect by a single contest. Cobb was mighty proud of that performance and hated to see it broken.

There is little left for Cobb to conquer in a baseball way. When he has topped the two records still held by Wagner he will reign supreme in all departments.

Cobb should accomplish both feats by the close of the 1924 campaign.

For Real Action No Heavyweight's Record Compares With Dempsey's

FO REAL ACTION

It's going on four years now since Jack Dempsey was crowned "king of pugilists" following that famous fight at Toledo. And judging from the crop of heavyweight title contenders now appearing above the horizon it is apt to be quite a while yet ere the laurel wreath is lifted from Utah mauler's brow. For Jack still towers above the field by several hands.

During the past 20 years the ring has seen many famous heavyweights. Take them right down the line there are Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Hart, Barnes, Johnson and Willard, not to say anything of Sharkey, Rahlin, Chynski, Maher, and others. But where has the game seen such a finisher as Dempsey, the present champion?

In his last six battles, the "Giant Killer" has taken less than 75 minutes all told to dispose of his opponents. Not quite an hour and a quarter to subdue the six strongest foes that could be produced. Look 'em over: Morris, 2 minutes; Gunboat Smith, 8 minutes; Willard, 9 minutes; Miske, 10 minutes; Brennan, 35 minutes; and Carpenter, 10 minutes and 16 seconds. And oddly enough it took Dempsey almost as long to put the skids under Brennan as it did the other five combined.

Leaving out the Brennan go, the other five fights have averaged less than three rounds. A record that no other ring champion can boast. In two battles it took Jeffries 33 rounds to beat Corbett, while Fitzsimmons lasted 19 sessions in a pair of tilts with the big Californian.

Jack Johnson required 41 rounds to stop Burns, Ketchel and Jeffries. Ketchel alone staying 12 rounds though going away out of his class to meet the colored title-holder. Willard couldn't stop Johnson away until the twenty-sixth stanza, and never stopped another opponent after that.

For neatness and dispatch the ring cannot show anyone to compare with Dempsey in putting across the verdict in quick order. As a rule Jack doesn't keep the spectators in anxiety any longer than possible, and sometimes hardly long enough.

As has been the case with other golf exponents who have developed into championship caliber, Young Malloy started on his golfing career accidentally.

One day, five years ago, he ran across an old golf club in the basement of his uncle's cellar. After diving tin cans and stones around the yard for a while he took the happy step of buying a golf ball. Since then he has displayed marked improvement.

In the three years that he has been caddyding John has obtained a wealth of experience and has surprised even his most ardent followers, who see a real future on the links for him.

Incidentally, John comes from a golfing family, his father being an enthusiast of the game, while two younger brothers also play remarkably well for youngsters.

Michigan Lad Emulates Sarazen's Performances

By NEA Service

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 4.—From caddy boy to world's champion is quite a leap in the golfing world. And it isn't very often accomplished.

But this little college town, nevertheless, believes it has a youngster who bids fair to emulate the rapid climb on Gene Sarazen and others on the links.

John Malloy is this lad's name. Although not yet 16, and only 5 feet 2 inches in height, many critics are already predicting great things for him as a golfer.

John is a caddy at the Ann Arbor Golf Club. Last summer, in one of the caddy tournaments, he made the first nine holes in 36, which is par, and completed the home stretch in 23.

His average for the 18 holes is continually right around par. In 1922 he was in five caddy meets and was low score lad in all of them.

HANDLING OF NEWS ON BIG FIGHT IS JOB

Special Telegraph Stations Being Fitted Up To Carry Out Messages

NO PRIVATE WIRES

Shelby, Mont., June 5.—Handling the wordage of a championship fight requires more ticks than a clock. The Great Northern railroad, working with the Western Union in Shelby July Fourth will tick the color and the results of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight to the world outside. It will take more than a million ticks. The results will be ticks on who wins.

The color will be ticks on how he did it.

There will be 15 sending tickers at the ringside.

At this fight there will be no such thing as a private wire.

J. C. Rankine, Superintendent of Telegraph of the Great Northern, would like to give every newspaper writer a separate wire.

This is in Shelby and not Toledo or Jersey City.

Writers will be grouped around the tickers sending their general direction.

For instance the scribes sending east will be grouped on one side of the ring. Those firing their impressions west on how Dempsey smacks Gibbons and how Gibbons rams Dempsey will be grouped on another side of the squared circle, and so on.

Copy will be filed in ticks. Clerks provided by the Western Union will feed the stuff to the operators quickly and without confusion.

Superintendent Rankine believes that close to a million words will be handled by his staff.

The major dome wires associations will probably hook on to the telephone lines. There are accommodations for four outlets this way. It is possible that additional wires may be strung by the phone company from Conrad to double the present capacity.

The Great Northern already has one observation car parked here and equipped as a first class telegraph office. By June 15 another will be brought here and fitted up.

Railway officials are planning to park 32 special trains here on newly built spurs.

The five trains expected from Canada will be stopped at Virden, a mile and a half east of Shelby.

The Great Northern will establish a regular hotel camp here to house and feed its extra employees needed for the overnight big city terminal.

It is possible that some of the waiting newspapermen will be housed in Pullmans. Between 300 and 400 scribes are expected to be here to tell what happens.

The railroad is working with Promoters Mike Collins, Loy J. Molmby and Mayor Jim Johnson, in every respect to make the show a big success.

Improved mechanical equipment at the state hospital for the insane will result both in a saving of money and labor, in the opinion of Leopold Pister, engineer for the Fuel Economy Engineering Company, who is in Jamestown to superintend the plant additions.

The present equipment at the hospital consists of seven boilers of which two are practically obsolete, and two others are too small to permit of changes being made. It is proposed to equip the boilers with mechanical stokers, similar to the stoker tested out at the Agricultural College, Fargo. It is believed a 25 percent saving in the institution fuel bill can be made.

Coal now is delivered over concrete trestles and is handled approximately seven times before reaching the boilers. It is proposed to install concrete pockets which bottom coal will be delivered by bottom dump coal cars. An automatic conveyor will carry the coal to a crusher, where it will be reduced to a uniform size, thence elevated by an automatic elevator to an overhead steel concrete lined coal bin from which it will be distributed automatically to the stoker hoppers. It is said that it will be possible to operate the entire boiler room with two men against a force of eight employed men and ten inmates now used.

REIDER NOT BADLY HURT

Injuries Not as Severe as Reports Indicated

John Reider, centerfielder on the Bismarck baseball club, who suffered injury in the game at Jamestown Saturday while sliding into a base, is not seriously hurt as was feared at first, according to information here today.

Reider wrenched his ankle and possibly suffered slight fracture of a small bone, according to reports to day. The tendons were not hurt. He is expected to return to Jamestown tonight with his foot in a plastered cast, and within a comparatively short time it is expected that he will be able to resume his place in the center garden.

In the meantime Manager Shanley is a center fielder to take Reider's place.

First reports at Jamestown indicated an injury which would keep Reider out of the next season.

Reider is a St. Paul boy playing his first year in organized ball. He has proved a distinct find, and his play featured the Jamestown series.

102nd BIRTHDAY PARTY SUCCESS

Fargo, June 5.—"Grandma" Agnes Cowan Waddell is a "very bright, sweet old lady" John Burke said today, following his return from Bismarck where he helped this oldest of a family of 20 celebrate her 102nd birthday.

More than 1,000 people from Bismarck and Revere counties, and from across the border line in Canada, gathered to do honor to the aged woman who smiled and enjoyed the celebration with the youngest of them.

A parade made up of automobile floats from throughout the two counties, with Mrs. Waddell at the head, opened the celebration at 11 a. m. Saturday.

The afternoon and evening were given over to Scotch dances, music and speeches in the Bottineau community building, which is modeled after the Mormon tabernacle at Salt Lake City and has a capacity of about 2,000 people.

McLeod, famous Scotch piper, and the McLean brothers, Scotch dancers, were there to lend their efforts to the occasion.

"She didn't get tired, apparently," he smiled and seemed to enjoy it all," said the former United States treasurer and North Dakota governor in telling of the celebration. "She was on that stage from 2 p. m. until nearly 6 and again from 8 to 10 p. m. Occasionally she would light her pipe and have a smoke."

Commencement Of Ransom Co. School Unique

Ransom county is planning unique commencement exercises. Graduates of the eighth grade in the county schools will be conducted on an all day tour of historical points in the county as part of the exercises. Prior to starting, at 10 a. m. on June 7, short exercises will be held. Mrs. A. L. Treat, oldest settler in the county, who has lived there since 1871, will play a piano solo. Dana Wright of Jamestown will speak.

The tour will include a visit to Fort Ransom, and to the Sheyenne river, where John C. Fremont explored in 1839 and 1840, which is the site of the first white settlement. The state department of education will be represented.

Stove Fire

Fires are running in cycles in Bismarck, firemen notice. Whenever there is one call they expect two more soon afterward. The third call within a very short time came yesterday afternoon. A kerosene stove at the Schwartz home, 419 Second street, burned over. There was virtually no damage.

Withdrawal By Agents Method Is Explained

"Since the Ruling of the Insurance Commissioner regarding Power of Attorney to be filed by agents withdrawing lands from Hail Indemnity Tax went into effect the Department has received so many inquiries relative to the same that a few words of explanation seems necessary," says a statement by S. A. Olansen, commissioner of Insurance, who continues:

"It is not necessary for agents to attach to the withdrawal affidavit the original 'Power of Attorney,' but certified copies will do as well, particularly as the Departmental Ruling so specifies, and it would be very inconvenient for agents to have originals made out for each section or tract described on the withdrawal.

"It might also be possible for agents handling large tracts of land to file originals of Power of Attorney in the offices of the Hail Insurance Department and that of the County Auditor of the County in which the land is located, then include in the affidavit the information that such originals of Power of Attorney have been filed in the office above mentioned; in that way the Department would have a chance to look the matter up and accept such withdrawals, if correct information is furnished—otherwise reject them, as possible.

"The Department does not wish to prevent anyone from making withdrawals who desire to do so, but it is felt to be the best policy to have agents show authority and thus get away from any controversies which might otherwise arise. It should be understood that it is not the object of the Department to make it more difficult for those who wish, and have the right, to withdraw to do so, and the purpose of this explanation is to make compliance with the former ruling as easy and practical as possible.

"It should be remembered that a 25c Internal Revenue Stamp must be attached to the Original Power of Attorney."

Coal Saving At Hospital Is Planned

Improved mechanical equipment at the state hospital for the insane will result both in a saving of money and labor, in the opinion of Leopold Pister, engineer for the Fuel Economy Engineering Company, who is in Jamestown to superintend the plant additions.

The present equipment at the hospital consists of seven boilers of which two are practically obsolete, and two others are too small to permit of changes being made. WHEAT FALLS TO NEW LOW FOR SEASON

The purchasing order having been September both were below $1.03 filled. On the decline July and for the first time. THE OLD HOME TOWN

MARSHAL OTEY WALKER, WHO HAS BEEN HUNTING FOR THE RED WHEELBARROW MISSING FROM VAN ORMAN'S STORE, TRIPPED AND FELL AT THE SAME SPOT WHERE LESTER LUNKER FELL YESTERDAY.

CITY BODY TO MAKE OFFER TO BUY PROPERTY

Opinion Discussed

An opinion given by Justice Svenbjorn Johnson before he retired from the office of Attorney-General of North Dakota was brought into discussion. Mr. Johnson had been asked "as to whether or not the city of Bismarck can be restrained from constructing a Water Works system by reason of the franchise of the Bismarck Water Supply Company. In the case the city cannot be so restrained would the Bismarck Water Supply Company have an financial claim against the city or reason of the franchise?"

Mr. Johnson said that "there is nothing contained in the ordinance and contracts submitted which would give the company any claim to an exclusive franchise. There are not words or provisions expressly making the grant exclusive, and it is well established that charters and grants are to be construed strictly against the corporation, and a franchise will not be held to be exclusive unless the intention to grant an exclusive privilege clearly appears."

Numerous court decisions were cited and which he recited one case and quoted from it. The opinion said: "The case of the Skaneateles Water Works Co., vs. Skaneateles, supra, was a suit brought by the water company asking for an injunction to restrain the village from constructing its own waterworks, claiming that the company's property was being taken without due process of law. The company had a franchise which was not in terms exclusive. The court in denying the writ of injunction said:

"It would seem to be clear, under the decision of this court, that the plaintiff in applying to the village and filing its certificate with the Secretary of State under the Act of 1873 acquired no contract right, expressed or implied, to any exclusive privilege of using the streets of the village for supply it with water."

Not Exclusive Franchise

The Attorney-General continuing, said: "As the franchise of the Bismarck Water Supply Company is not an exclusive grant and contains no provisions expressly binding the city of Bismarck not to construct waterworks, its existence will not prevent the city from either granting a franchise to a competing company or from building waterworks of its own. The grant of a franchise not in terms exclusive by a municipality imposes on it no obligation not to grant another corporation a similar franchise, nor any obligation not to enter into competition with the grantee by the construction of a municipal plant. And a covenant, condition, or renunciation of its powers by a municipality so as to preclude itself from operating a competing water plant will not be implied."

Rotary Convention To Frame Code of Ethics

St. Louis, June 5.—Administrative problems and the best way to introduce a standard code of ethics among business and professional men throughout the world will focus the attention of ten thousand delegates, to the fourteenth annual convention of the Rotary International, which opens June 18.

The number of Rotary clubs in the world has almost doubled within the last five years, and there now are more than fourteen hundred club units, divided into 39 districts in cities of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Denmark, Uruguay, Spain, Panama and Argentina, with one international organization in the British Isles, Australia and South Africa.

Probably the most interesting business to come before the convention will be the discussion of the proposition that Rotary clubs concentrate their energies for a year in development of programs that will have for an object the introduction of standard codes of ethical practices among business and professional men in all business or professions represented in Rotary.

An unusually large number of delegates from clubs overseas, particularly those from the British Isles and various parts of the British empire have announced their intention of coming and some have already started.

St. Louis is making great preparations for the reception of the visitors, and already reservations have been made for more than 8,000 Rotarians.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

works, its existence will not prevent the city from either granting a franchise to a competing company or from building waterworks of its own. The grant of a franchise not in terms exclusive by a municipality imposes on it no obligation not to grant another corporation a similar franchise, nor any obligation not to enter into competition with the grantee by the construction of a municipal plant. And a covenant, condition, or renunciation of its powers by a municipality so as to preclude itself from operating a competing water plant will not be implied. The opinion was interspersed with numerous quotations and decision from the courts. Further quoting in the Skaneateles Waterworks Co., vs. Skaneateles, supra, the opinion quotes the court as follows: "There is no implied contract in an ordinary grant of a franchise, such as this, that the grantor will never do any act in which the value of a franchise granted may in the future be reduced."

Again the opinion said: "It seems clearer from the cases cited that the Bismarck Water Supply Company would not, because of its franchise, be entitled to a restraining order to prevent the City of Bismarck from constructing its own waterworks, and would have no claim for any damages because of the construction of such a plant."

Renville Co. People Look Toward Future

People in Renville county are not only optimistic and thinking of the future but are preparing for it, according to State Superintendent of Public Instruction Miss Minnie Nielson, who has returned from Sherwood, Renville county, where she delivered an address at the dedication of the new school there. The school, which cost $75,000, is modern in every respect, she said.

Rotary Convention To Frame Code of Ethics

St. Louis, June 5.—Administrative problems and the best way to introduce a standard code of ethics among business and professional men throughout the world will focus the attention of ten thousand delegates, to the fourteenth annual convention of the Rotary International, which opens June 18.

The number of Rotary clubs in the world has almost doubled within the last five years, and there now are more than fourteen hundred club units, divided into 39 districts in cities of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Denmark, Uruguay, Spain, Panama and Argentina, with one international organization in the British Isles, Australia and South Africa.

Probably the most interesting business to come before the convention will be the discussion of the proposition that Rotary clubs concentrate their energies for a year in development of programs that will have for an object the introduction of standard codes of ethical practices among business and professional men in all business or professions represented in Rotary.

An unusually large number of delegates from clubs overseas, particularly those from the British Isles and various parts of the British empire have announced their intention of coming and some have already started.

St. Louis is making great preparations for the reception of the visitors, and already reservations have been made for more than 8,000 Rotarians.

REFORM LIFE, NOT PRISON, HE SAYS AFTER SIX YEARS

Prisoners cannot redeem man.

REV. MADISON SLAUGHTER

BY GENE COHN

Porterville, Calif., June 5.—What kind of a sermon can a preacher of the gospel draw from six years of prison?

What message can he bring from the gray walls to his fellow man on the outside?

The Rev. Madison Slaughter, a keen observer and student of men and life, brings the answers from a six-year sentence recently ended in San Quentin prison.

For some months he has been quietly preaching to a little country parish each Sunday.

"Prisoners can never do more than reflect the world outside," he says.

"In other words, it isn't the prison that needs reforming, it's life. If life were all right there wouldn't be need for prisons."

What impressed him

"One thing impressed me mightily and I will elaborate upon it in books I shall write. There has been little effort made to study the psychology of punishment. Because of the conditions existing, most prisoners consider penitentiaries as an experience rather than reform or of punishment."

"I found most of the punishment comes before a man enters his cell; that is, while he is on trial and fighting for liberty. Afterward he feels he is paying his debt."

"Prisoners do not redeem men. That has to come from within; it is the fruit of time."

"Quantitative punishment—so much for this, and for that—has no meaning where reform is the goal. The punishment is always fitted to a crime and not to an offender's mental and moral capacity."

Men Like Children

"You find few penitents in a penitentiary. One great trouble is this: Men are like children and they can be punished only so far as they believe they merit it."

"When the punishment is more severe than that they become rebellious."

"And what is the result? They not only feel that they have paid their debt to society, no matter what the crime, but there are those who think they've got a lot coming to them from society."

"I should say: Treat the convict a little better than he deserves. Reverse the situation. Then you make him obligated to you. He still owes you something and he has a sense of obligation, instead of rebellion."

"But, most of all, don't forget life is the institution to look into closely—not the prison."

ROBINS AGAIN ADVANCE OVER NATIONAL FOES

Defeat Pittsburgh in Battle For Second Place in National League

RUTH FALLS BEHIND

Chicago, June 5.—The Brooklyn Robins continuing their marvelous pace are tied for second place with Pittsburgh today as a result of their victory over the Pirates yesterday, 5 to 3. The Brooklyn segregation drove a half game nearer the league leading. Thanks to the latter team was idle. The Robins apparently are making their own opportunity for Pittsburgh now is counted the strongest team in the west.

The Philadelphia Athletics, back for a prolonged stay on their own ground, will hold receptions for the western teams they found so easy. The Yanks, too, will be receiving western visitors for the time being. Losing yesterday to Washington 5 to 2 and the third straight defeat.

Of two sensational teams of the majors Brooklyn is going better. It was the fury of its attack that won over the Pirates yesterday for the Robins had won 12 out of 13 games on their home lot here and had been fairly successful on the road. The Robins were outbatted but their blows were timely.

Cincinnati continued to lose opportunities by losing to Chicago 8 to 7, in the ninth inning after they had the game won.

"C" Williams of the Phillies is widening the gap between himself and Babe Ruth, his American League rival for home run honors. Babe managed to pole a triple off Zahner of Washington while Williams smashed out his 20th circuit drive off Philippon of Boston. Ruth's total of home runs is 11.

The western clubs of the American League are starting their invasion of the east today while the western clubs of the National League are advancing on the west.

MINOT TAKES LAST GAME OF TWIN SERIES

Minot, June 5.—Minot pounded Ryan and won the final game of the series from Carlington-New Rockford yesterday, 8 to 2. Laffer allowed 11 hits but kept them well centered and was backed by poor support. Minot won four out of the seven game series, and one was tied. The score:

B. H. E.
Carlington-New Rockford..... 100 010 000—2 11
Minot..... 231 200 000—8 12 0
Batteries: Ryan and Laffer, Leifer and Warner.

Three Tied in Emmons County League Race

Napoleon, N. D., June 5.—Napoleon defeated Strasburg here Sunday by a score of 2 to 0, and Hazelton won over Linton 4 to 2.

This leaves Napoleon, Linton and Hazelton in a tie for first place and Strasburg in the cellar position, in the Emmons-Logan League.

The game at Napoleon was fast and cleanly played. The Naps made their two scores in the first inning. Stephen Maher, pitcher for Napoleon, struck out 10 men and allowed 4 hits. Plus York for Strasburg struck out 9 men and allowed 6 hits. Napoleon made one error and Strasburg 2.

With three games of the twelve-game schedule played, the standing is as follows:

Beginner Should Hit The Ball Before Turf

While the golf beginner may have plenty of trouble trying to hit the ball at all, especially when he is trying a full swing, it is just as well from the time of first taking up the game to try to acquire the habit of hitting the ball before hitting the ground, particularly with the mashie.

That is the general way of attacking the ball in and in these modern days, when courses are so thoroughly bunkered and greens so carefully guarded, it is almost obligatory to have backspin to get anywhere in the competitive ranks as well as to get the most enjoyment out of the game.

It is failing for one man to see his playing companion or opponent stick a ball on a green and see it stop after rolling a comparatively few feet, while his own ball hits about the same place and runs like a scared rabbit across the green.

Watch the star golfers and if you got a chance mark in some way the spot where the ball rests and the note where the mashie digs in to the turf. You will find the break in the turf almost invariably in advance of the spot where the ball rested.

The club has hit the ball on the down stroke and as the ball passes over the face of the club it is set

For Real Action No Heavyweight's Record Compares With Dempsey's

FO REAL ACTION
It's going on four years now since Jack Dempsey was crowned "king of pugilists" following that Willard fiasco at Toledo. And judging from the crop of heavyweight title contenders now appearing above the horizon it is apt to be quite a spell yet before the laurel wreath is lifted from Club mauler's brow. For Jack still towers above the field by several hands.

During the past 30 years the ring has seen many famous heavyweights. Take them right down the line there are Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Hart, Burns, Johnson and Willard, not to say anything of Sharkey, Runklin, Chojnski, Maher, and others. But where has the game seen such a finisher as Dempsey, the present champion?

In his last six battles, the "Giant Killer" has taken less than 75 minutes all told to dispose of his opponents. Not quite an hour and a quarter to subdue the six strongest foes that could be produced. Look 'em over: Morris, 2 minutes; Gunboat Smith, 8 minutes; Willard, 9 minutes; Miske, 10 minutes; Brennan, 35 minutes; and Carpenter, 10 minutes and 14 seconds. And oddly enough it took Dempsey almost as long to put the skids under Brennan as it did the other five combined.

Leaving out the Brennan game, the other five fights have averaged less than three rounds. A record that no other ring champion can boast.

In two battles it took Jeffries 33 rounds to beat Corbett, while Fitzsimmons lasted 19 sessions in a pair of tilts with the big Californian.

Jack Johnson required 41 rounds to stop Burns, Ketchel and Jeffries, Ketchel alone staying 12 rounds though going away out of his class to meet the colored title-holder. Willard couldn't stop Johnson away until the twenty-sixth stanza, and never stopped another opponent after that.

For neatness and dispatch the ring cannot show anyone to compare with Dempsey in putting across the verdict in quick order. As a rule Jack doesn't keep the spectators in anxiety any longer than possible, and sometimes hardly long enough.

As has been the case with other golf exponents who have developed into championship caliber Young Mulloy started on his golfing career accidentally.

One day, five years ago, he ran across an old golf club in the basement of his uncle's cellar. After diving into cans and stones around the yard for a while he took the happy step of buying a golf ball. Since then he has displayed marked improvement.

In the three years that he has been caddyding John has obtained a wealth of experience and has surprised even his most ardent followers, who see a real future on the links for him.

Incidentally John comes from a golfing family, his father being an enthusiast of the game, while two younger brothers also play remarkably well for youngsters.

I am a candidate for re-election as a member of the Board of Education and solicit your support and vote on June 5th.

E. V. Lahr.

I hereby announce myself for re-election as a member of the Board of Education, and solicit your support and vote on June 5th.

A. P. Lenhart.

Michigan Lad Emulates Sarazen's Performances

By NEA Service
Ann Arbor, Mich., June 4.—From caddy boy to world's champion is quite a leap in the golfing world. And it isn't very often accomplished.

But this little college town, nevertheless, believes it has a youngster who bids fair to emulate the royal climb on Gene Sarazen and others on the links.

John Malloy is this lad's name. Although not yet 18, and only 5 feet 2 inches in height, many critics are already predicting great things for him as a golfer.

To be a caddy at the Ann Arbor Golf Club. Last summer, in one of the caddy tournaments, he made the first nine holes in 35, which is par, and completed the round on the links.

His average for the 18 holes is continually right around par. In 1922 he was in five caddy meets and was low score in all of them.

Only Two Records Remain Between Tyrus Cobb And Absolute Baseball Supremacy

BY BILLY EVANS

Two records alone remain between Cobb and absolute supremacy in baseball. Those two records are held by Honus Wagner.

The great Wagner of other days still holds the lead in total number of hits, and also has the edge in total number of bases.

Wagner's total number of hits, 3430, cover 21 years of major league campaigning. At the opening of the season Cobb had 3266 hits to his credit. In order to top Wagner's record, the Detroit leader must make 164 hits during the 1923 campaign.

Unless illness or injury puts him out of the running, he will put Wagner's base-hit record into the discard before the close of the present season.

Wagner's total number of bases for his 3430 hits amount to 4881. It would be asking too much to have Cobb top that feat this year, but it is certain to be beaten by Cobb before he closes his major league career. Then Cobb will have attained about all the glory there is in the record book.

Cobb has played more games than any other player in the history of the American League. He has gone through more campaigns—18. He leads in the number of hits, total bases and extra base hits.

His lifetime batting average is .372, far in excess of any player who has worked 10 years or more in the majors. He has batted 400 or better in three seasons, equalling Jesse Burkett's record. He has batted 300 or better for 17 consecutive seasons.

Wagner has turned the same trick. Cobb will pass it this year. He has made 200 or more hits in each of eight seasons, equalling Willie Keeler's mark.

It is a rather interesting fact that Cobb broke the greatest number of runs record by his own individual effort. A home run, off Pitcher Charles Robertson of Chicago on May 24, made the 1724 run scored during his 19 years in the big show against 21 for Wagner, who made 1741 runs during that length of time.

Wagner is the only player close to Cobb in lifetime averages. Third in ranking is Larry Lajoie. Cobb and Wagner have a wide margin on the great Larry. This trio easily leads the remainder of the field.

George Sisler is the only man who has threatened Cobb's list of achievements since the Georgian started his super-career. The trouble that Sisler recently suffered to his eyes appears to have destroyed any chance the St. Louis star had of equalling Cobb's feats.

Last year, Sisler in batting safely in 41 consecutive games, topped Cobb's record in that respect by a single contest. Cobb was mighty proud of that performance and hated to see it broken.

There is little left for Cobb to conquer in a baseball way. When he has topped the two records still held by Wagner he will reign supreme in all departments.

Cobb should accomplish both feats by the close of the 1924 campaign.

HANDLING OF NEWS ON BIG FIGHT IS JOB

Special Telegraph Stations Being Fitted Up To Carry Out Messages

NO PRIVATE WIRES

Shelby, Mont., June 5.—Handling the words of a championship fight require more ticks than a clock.

The Great Northern railroad, working with the Western Union in Shelby by July Fourth will tick the color and the results of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight to the world outside. It will take more than a million ticks.

The results will be ticks on who wins.

The color will be ticks on how he did it.

There will be 15 sending tickers at the ringside.

At this fight there will be no such thing as a private wire.

C. Rankine, Superintendent of Telegraph of the Great Northern, would like to give every newspaper writer a separate wire.

But this is Shelby and not Toledo or Jersey City.

Writers will be grouped around the tickers sending their general directions.

For instance the scribes sending east will be grouped on one side of the ring. Those firing their impressions west on how Dempsey smacks Gibbons and how Gibbons rams Dempsey will be grouped on another side of the squared circle and so on.

Copy will be filed in ticks. Clerks provided by the Western Union will feed the stuff to the operators quickly and without confusion.

Superintendent Rankine believes that close to a million words will be handled by his staff.

The major dome wires associations will probably hook on to the telephone lines. These are accommodations for four outlets this way. It is possible that additional wires may be strung by the phone company from Conrad to double the present capacity.

The Great Northern already has one observation car parked here and equipped as a first class telegraph office. By June 15 another will be brought here and fitted up.

Railway officials are planning to park 32 special trains here on newly built spurs.

The five trains expected from Canada will be stopped at Varden, a mile and a half east of Shelby.

The Great Northern will establish a regular hotel camp here to house and feed its extra employees needed for the overnight big city terminal.

It is possible that some of the fighting newspapermen will be housed in Pullmans. Between 300 and 400 scribes are expected to be here to tell what happens.

The railroad is working with Promoters Mike Collins, Loy J. Molumby and Mayor Jim Johnson, in every respect to make the show a big success.

Railway officials estimate they will haul 25,000 to Shelby by rail July Fourth.

Fans who will travel by auto should number around 20,000 more.

The arena built to seat 40,000, is nearly one-half complete. The promoters are already figuring on plans to boost the capacity of the octagon to 60,000 if the advance sale looks healthy enough.

There are 1,200,000 feet of lumber being used in the bowl. A sellout will make the gate $1,200,000—a dollar for every foot of lumber used.

REIDER NOT BADLY HURT

Injuries Not as Severe as Reports Indicated

John Reider, centerfielder on the Bismarck baseball club, who suffered injury in the game at Jamestown Saturday while sliding into a base, is not seriously hurt as was feared at first, according to information here today.

Reider wrenched his ankle and possibly sprained his knee, but he is able to get around on crutches.

The tendons were not hurt. He is expected to return to Jamestown tonight with his foot in a plastered cast, and within a comparatively short time it is expected that he will be able to resume his place in the center garden.

In the meantime Manager Shanley is a center Reider to take Reider's place.

First reports at Jamestown indicated an injury which would keep Reider out of the game all season.

Reider is a St. Paul boy playing his first year in organized ball. He has proved a distinct find, and his play figured in the Jamestown series.

102nd BIRTHDAY PARTY SUCCESS

Fargo, June 5.—"Grandma" Agnes Cowan Waddell is a "very" bright, sweet old lady. John Burke said today, following his return from Fargo, where he helped this oldest of a family of 30 celebrate her 102nd birthday.

More than 1,000 people from Bismarck and Rolette counties, and from across the border line in Canada, gathered to do honor to the aged woman who smiled and enjoyed the celebration with the youngest of them.

A parade made up of automobile floats from throughout the two counties, with Mrs. Waddell at the head, opened the celebration at 11 a. m. Saturday.

The afternoon and evening were given over to Scotch dances, music and speeches in the Bismarck community building, which is modeled after the Mormon tabernacle at Salt Lake City and has a capacity of about 2,000 people.

McLeod, famous Scotch piper, and the McLeod brothers, Scotch dancers, were there to lend their efforts to the occasion.

"She didn't get tired, apparently, but smiled and seemed to enjoy it all," said the former United States treasurer and North Dakota governor in telling of the celebration. "She was on that stage from 2 p. m. until nearly 8 and again from 8 to 10 p. m. Occasionally she would light her pipe and have a smoke."

Withdrawal By Agents Method Is Explained

"Since" the Ruling of the Insurance Commissioner regarding Power of Attorney to be filed by Agents withdrawing from the Mail Insurance Company was intended to effect the Department has received so many inquiries relative to the same that a few words of explanation seems necessary," says a statement by S. A. Olmstead, commissioner of Insurance, who continues:

"It is not necessary for agents to attach the original Power of Attorney, but certified copies will do as well, provided the Departmental Ruling so specifies, and it would be very inconvenient for agents to have originals made out for each section or tract described on the withdrawal.

"It might also be possible for agents to have originals made out for each section or tract described on the withdrawal.

"It might also be possible for agents handling large tracts of land to file originals of Power of Attorney in the office of the Mail Insurance Department and that of the County Auditor of the County in which the land is located, then include in the affidavit of Power of Attorney have been filed in the office above mentioned; in that way the Department would have a chance to look the matter up and accept such withdrawals, if correct information is furnished—otherwise reject them.

"The Department does not wish to prevent anyone from withdrawing, who desire to do so, but it is felt to be the best policy to have agents show authority and thus get away from any controversies which might otherwise arise. It should be understood that it is not the object of the Department to make it more difficult for those who wish, and have the right, to withdraw to do so, and the purpose of this explanation is to make compliance with the former Ruling as easy and practical as possible.

"It should be remembered that a 25c Internal Revenue Stamp must be attached to the Original Power of Attorney."

Coal Saving At Hospital Is Planned

Improved mechanical equipment at the state hospital for the insane will result both in a saving of money and labor, in the opinion of Leopold Flaster, engineer for the Fuel Economy Engineering Company, who is in Jamestown to superintend the plant additions.

The present equipment at the hospital consists of seven boilers of which two are practically obsolete, and two others are too small to permit of changes being made. It is proposed to equip three boilers with mechanical stokers, similar to the stoker tested out at the Agricultural College, Fargo. It is believed a 25 percent saving in the institution fuel bill can be made.

Coal now is delivered over concrete tracks and is handled approximately seven times before reaching the boilers. It is proposed to install concrete coal pockets to which coal will be delivered by bottom dump coal cars. An automatic conveyor will carry the coal to a crusher, where it will be reduced to a uniform size, thence elevated by an automatic elevator to an overhead steel cone which will discharge automatically to the stoker hoppers. It is said that it will be possible to operate the entire boiler room with two men as against a force of eight employed men and ten inmates now used.

WHEAT FALLS TO NEW LOW FOR SEASON

Speculative Buying Fails To Provide Sustained Price Level

Chicago, June 5.—Although some speculative buying gave an upturn to wheat prices at the opening today, a setback quickly ensued. The purchasing order having been pulled. On the decline July and for the first time. Influenced more or less by assertions that domestic and foreign demand was inadequate to take care of prospective hedging sales the majority of traders appeared to favor the bear side. Opening prices which varied from unchanged to 1/2 cents higher with July 1/8-1/2 and September 1/8-1/2, were followed by declines all around to well below yesterday's finish.

With corn making a notable advance in value the wheat market took an upward swing today near the close of the board of trade session. Surmises that Germany's new reparations offer might lead to a settlement with France counted also as a bullish factor. Wheat closed unsettled 3-8 to 7-8 net higher. July, $1.09 1-8 to $1.09 1-4, and September, $1.09 to $1.09 1-8.
